Bond Issues Carried At Seal Beach And Centralia

TAX RATE IN ANAHEIM TO BE BOOSTED

Voters Agree to Boost Its Rate 20 Cents on $100; School Boards Selected

JETTY AT SEAL BEACH

School District at Centralia Approves Bonds for $25,000 on Friday

ORANGE COUNTY voters yesterday expressed themselves in favor of two bond issues totaling $157,000, and in one municipality increased school maintenance tax rates 20 cents on the $100, as county-wide school board and bond elections were held.

In Seal Beach voters approved a three-project bond issue of $125,000 by lopsided majorities. Bonds for $40,000 for a municipal sewage disposal plant, $62,000 for a municipal jetty at the entrance to Anaheim Bay, and $23,000 for a municipal water system were passed by the Seal Beach electorate.

Federal grants of $12,000 for the sewage disposal plant and $20,000 for the breakwater will swell the total cost of the projects to $164,000. Seal Beach city officials this morning stated that immediate arrangements are being made to proceed with the work, and that bids will be advertised in the near future.

The Federal grants are expected to be approved shortly, as all preliminary steps for their securing were taken sometime ago. Centralia school district voters passed a $25,000 bond issue for a new building by the slender margin of one vote in yesterday's election. The bond vote was 118 to 52, a two-thirds majority being required for passage.

The bond issue will provide for purchase of a school site on Lincoln boulevard between Hansen road and Western avenue, and erection of a building to house 400 class rooms, an auditorium of 300 seating capacity and a basement for manual training and domestic science.

Passage of the much disputed bond issue was taken as an indication of reconciled differences between factions of the district who have been split over a move to distribute the Centralia district between the three adjacent districts of Buena Park, Cypress and Magnolia. The abolition of the Centralia district was actually accomplished last year, but the proceedings were found to be invalid, because of failure to comply with certain legal requirements as to giving notice. A second separation move was defeated recently before the board of supervisors.

Anaheim taxpayers voted to increase the school district maintenance tax by 20 cents on the $100, by a count of 438 to 204. It was expected that the total tax rate would remain virtually the same, as bond redemption taxes have been decreased by approximately 20 cents during the past several years.

EVELYN STRACHEY SAILS FOR ENGLAND

NEW YORK, March 30.—(UP)—Evelyn John St. Lo Strachey, British author and advocate of communism, stood on the deck of the S. S. Berengaria early today and offered a parting bouquet, with a thorn, to America.

Through quick side-stepping of the immigration department, he left the country on his own free will, not as a deportee. Daniel W. McCormack, immigration commissioner, who had wanted to deport him because he allegedly believes in the overthrow of the government by force, withdrew charges, permitting Strachey to sail voluntarily.

"I certainly hope to come back," said Strachey. "I enjoyed it fine. My experiences here made me like America and Americans better than ever before." He added: "Of course, no country is to be blamed for its government."

FIVE AND TEN HEIRESS LANDS AT RENO TODAY

Barbara Hutton Flies Across Nation to Obtain Divorce from Prince

RENO, Nev., March 30.—(UP)—Barbara Hutton Mdivani, one of the world's wealthiest women, came to Reno today to divorce Prince Alexis, youngest of the "marrying Mdivanis."

The chartered airplane in which the "five and ten" heiress flew across the continent from New York landed here at 8:23 a. m. (PST).

Later in the day Miss Hutton—as she prefers to be known—will confer with George Thatcher, her Reno attorney, and take up residence in Thatcher's brown-singled mansion overlooking the Truckee river.

Her step-mother and Tompkins were to return to New York in a few days.

Only a small crowd greeted the princess upon her arrival at Reno airport.

Miss Hutton wore a mink coat, a brown suit and a short brown veil. She appeared tired and exhausted when she alighted from the specially-chartered United Airlines plane.

She smiled wanly at reporters who greeted her and posed for photographs, but refused to make any statement.

"Not now," she said with a wave of her hand. "I'm too tired. Maybe later."

Accompanying her on the flight from New York, N. J., were her step-mother, Mrs. Franklin Hutton, her New York attorney, Millard F. Tompkins Jr., and a servant.

Shortly after the two officials arrived with instructions from Governor George H. Earle to investigate the bombing of an automobile owned by Judge W. A. Valentine, an explosion shook dwellings on the west side of Wilkes-Barre. The blast did little damage, but was considered to mean that striking miners intended to maintain their "reign of terror."

Reports persisted that martial law might be declared in the "war zones," but officials gave no indication that the situation had reached that extent.

NEW TOWNSEND BILL READY FOR HOUSE

WASHINGTON, March 30.—(UP)—A modified form of the Townsend Old Age Pension bill will be introduced in the house Monday, Rep. John S. McGroarty, D., Cal., sponsor of the original $200 a month old age pension bill, said today.

The new bill will provide for a maximum pension of $200 a month to all persons over 60. McGroarty said, and will also provide for use of excess funds collected from a 2 per cent transaction tax to help pay off the public debt.

Introduction of the new bill is designed to attract supporters of liberal old age pensions who are unwilling to accept the radical proposal that everyone over 60 receive $200 every four weeks.

STATE SOLONS DODGE ISSUES IN PAST WEEK

Few Accomplishments Are Noted as Fourth Week of Session Ends

SACRAMENTO, Cal., March 30.—(UP)—The California legislature ended the fourth week of its spring session today with a slim list of accomplishments and a show for long hours of discussion and oratory.

With the close of each week, it appeared that intensive work on important bills would start the next, but this legislature has followed in the footsteps of others by postponing action on controversial measures until forced into motion by the proximity of summer.

Observers predicted at least two more weeks of issue dodging, then a month or so of day, night and week-end sessions which will be necessary to clear up the mass of legislation which this far has hardly been touched.

Little Accomplished.
Neither house accomplished much during the fourth week, most of the activity, as usual, being in committees. And even there, a general habit of "putting off until next week" prevented many important bills from being sent to the floor.

In the upper house, Senator Culbert Olson's bill to provide extensive state aid for self-help cooperatives appeared on the file for three days in a row but was skipped each day. It may be considered next week.

The senate did dispose of two argumentative measures—the short train bill and Senator Leonard D. Dan's proposal to repeal an act necessitating the calling of alternate cement and asphalt bids on highway projects.

Pass Tax Bill
The assembly passed a bill to tax foreign oils used in the manufacture of butter substitutes, and turned down a proposal to control floating sardine reduction plants. Otherwise, it devoted most of its time to routine and squabbles.

Activities of the week included the following:
Presentation in the assembly of two reports based on a special investigation of building and loan conditions throughout the state.

Lengthy discussion of proposals to reorganize building and loan regulations. The subject was continued until Monday.

Refusal of the lower house to approve bills which would limit the use of state automobiles to official purposes and require all state employees to be fingerprinted.

Postponement of action on a mortgage moratorium bill. The problem was turned over to a sub-committee and will be up for consideration later.

TANKER SLIPS OUT OF HARBOR DURING NIGHT

Non Union Crew Believed to Have Been Smuggled Aboard in Dark

BULLETIN
SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—(UP)—Two oil tankers steamed to sea from California ports today, the first break in the strike that has had 31 vessels tied up along the Pacific coast.

Manned by a non-union crew, the Associated Oil company's tanker Kewanee slipped out of upper San Francisco bay at Martinez under cover of darkness.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., March 30.—(UP)—The Union Oil tanker La Placencia, one of 12 ships tied up here by the seamen's strike, slipped out of the harbor before daybreak, apparently by a non-union crew.

The La Placencia's sailing was the ship owners' first move to carry out their threats to move tankers with non-union crews. It came coincidentally with a threat by 300 members of the shipyard sealers and painters to join the strike within 38 hours unless wage increase demands are met.

Destination of the La Placencia was unknown, although the vessel was believed bound either for San Francisco or Vancouver.

The tanker came from Port San Luis 13 days ago and had not discharged her cargo of crude oil here.

When day broke over the harbor, union pickets found the tanker missing from the outer basin where it had been anchored since its union crew joined the strike. A non-union crew was believed to have been smuggled aboard by boat from some pier outside the picket lines.

Strikers were angry, but no violence was reported. Union leaders apparently were waiting to see whether attempts would be made to move other tankers tied up at the docks.

Four other Union oil tankers were among the vessels strike-bound here.

Other allied shipyard trade workers were scheduled to meet today to discuss demands for higher pay and improved working conditions.

DELAYS ATTEMPT TO RUN UNION BLOCKADE
SAN FRANCISCO, March 30.—(UP)—The Associated Oil company delayed its attempt to run the union blockade today to await further developments of a peace move in the strike of oil tanker seamen.

The oil company had its tanker Kewanee manned by a non-union crew and loaded with fuel oil ready to sail for the Pacific northwest at a moment's notice, should the peace development prove futile. The tanker came to San Francisco.

FOUR MILLION LEFT TO FEED NEEDY ONES

WASHINGTON, Mar. 30.—(UP)—The Federal Emergency Relief Administration has only $4,000,000 left to feed and clothe the nation's 30,000,000 needy after Monday, officials said today.

The money would meet usual relief expenses for less than a day. Officials said, however, "no one will be forced to go hungry because of this temporary shortage."

April allotments cannot be made, they explained, until their fund is replenished from the $310,000,000 PWA money impounded last Dec. 29 by President Roosevelt to meet relief needs.

Raid Staged By Federal Men In N. Y.

Several Persons Reported Arrested in Biggest Haul in History

NEW YORK, March 30.—(UP)—Narcotics reportedly valued at more than $1,000,000 were seized by federal agents today in a surprise raid. The agents described the haul "the biggest seizure of narcotics in history."

Several persons were said to have been arrested. Federal authorities withheld details because they hoped to seize one or two other members of the ring.

Today's raid was based on information obtained in the recent nation-wide federal cleanup campaign.

Several weeks of under-cover work preceded the raid by Agent Robert Primrose and his associates.

Several agents were said to have posed as addicts to obtain information leading to the headquarters and the headquarters of the ring.

Primrose, who said he would make public details later in the day, revealed that 10 men were in custody at the federal building.

Washington, Mar. 30.—(UP)—The interstate commerce commission today denied the application of class one railroads for a flat 10 per cent increase in freight rates, but authorized added emergency charges on some classes of freight traffic.

The authorized increases will apply until June 30, 1936.

In general, the commission said, the emergency charges will be similar to those authorized by it in the rate case of 1931.

The general 10 per cent rate increase was denied by a five to four vote.

The majority of the commission held that the railroads were confronted by a "grave emergency" which warranted a certain measure of temporary rate relief.

DEATH SENTENCE OF MCGEE AFFIRMED
JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., March 30.—(UP)—The state supreme court today affirmed the death sentence of Walter H. McGee, convicted leader of the gang that kidnapped Miss Mary McElroy, daughter of Kansas City's city manager. His execution was set for May 19.

Unless a rehearing by the court or intervention by Governor Park delays the hanging, McGee will be the first person to die for kidnapping for ransom in the United States.

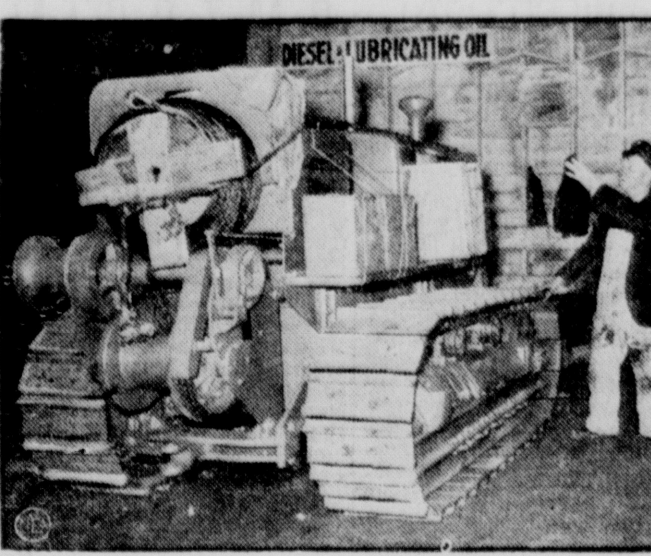

Supreme Court Commissioner Walter H. Bolling, who wrote the opinion, held that there had been no reversible error during McGee's trial in Jackson county circuit court in 1933. The death penalty fixed by the jury was upheld.

CULBERTSONS LEAD SIMS 9380 POINTS
NEW YORK, March 30.—(UP)—The bitter bridge match at bridge, which is bitter and concerns a grudge only in an affable sense, was adjourned over the week end early today with Ely Culbertson and his wife leading P. Hal Sims and Mrs. Sims by 9380 points with 111 rubbers to go.

In the last hand, Culbertson bid and made a grand slam while Sims and his wife were vulnerable, adding 2450 points to the family total. When the match is resumed Monday, it will be played under the new rules which give a lower premium for vulnerable grand slam.

MID PACIFIC THEIR GOAL

RAY HAMILTON NEW BELGIUM HUNT EXTENDS CABINET WINS TO OKLAHOMA HOUSE BACKING

Federal Agents Spread Out Between Tulsa and Muskogee in Search

TULSA, Okla., March 30.—(UP)—Dozens of officers, like hounds after a fox, today sought the trail of Raymond Hamilton, Texas murderer in flight across three states after a bank robbery in Mississippi. They were under orders to "shoot to kill."

The search for the 22-year-old gunman moved into Oklahoma last night when officers lost track of him and a wounded bandit companion in Arkansas.

Federal agents, led by Frank Wheeler, joined local and state officers in the hunt, spread through the region between Tulsa and Muskogee. Five automobile loads of police were in the scouting party.

The search for the 22-year-old gunman moved into Oklahoma last night when officers lost track of him and a wounded bandit companion in Arkansas.

Hamilton and his companion, still unidentified, eluded possees in Mississippi yesterday after being almost trapped in swamps near Hazlehurst. The day before the outlaws had robbed a Prentiss, Miss., bank of $1,100 and escaped by commandeering several automobiles and kidnapping their owners. Hamilton's companion was wounded in the face by buckshot when a farmer resisted an attempt to steal his car.

Last night Arkansas and Tennessee officers pursued the bandits across Arkansas and Tennessee. Officers pursued the bandits across Arkansas but lost the trail.

Positive identification of one of the bandits as Hamilton was obtained from M. E. Smith and Ralph Ballis who were held by the robbers all night after the Prentiss holdup.

DUKE ON TRIAL FOR PAWNING JEWELRY

LONDON, March 30.—(UP)—The Duke of Manchester was committed for trial today on the charge that he obtained 650 pounds ($1,122) by false pretenses in pawning jewelry which was part of the estate of his late mother.

The hearing was at Westminster police court. The Duke was allowed bail of 250 pounds ($1,200). He will be tried at the central criminal court.

It was charged that the Duke improperly pawned two pieces of jewelry held in entail under the will of his mother, the former Consuelo Yznaga de Valle, of Ravenswood, La. The Duke's first wife, who divorced him, was Helena Zimmerman of Cincinnati.

MINER FROZEN TO DEATH
QUINCY, Cal., March 30.—(UP)—Caught in the heavy snowstorm which raged over the Sierra range a week ago, Olaf Matson, 57, miner, was frozen to death, a searching party which brought his body here reported today.

Matson left his cabin on Jamison creek, 30 miles south of here, March 19 with a pouch of gold dust and nuggets. He sold the gold at Cromberg and started home the next day. En route he was overtaken by the storm and apparently became exhausted.

$500,000 TO BE SPENT ON RADIO PLANT

Purchase of 83 Acres of Marsh Land Near Huntington Beach Announced

WILL SEND MESSAGES

Commercial Radiograms to Be Sent and Received From All Over World

CONSTRUCTION of a Radio Corporation of America communications station near Huntington Beach on the Coast highway which will entail an initial outlay of more than a half-million dollars will be started immediately, it was learned today following the completion of a deal involving purchase of 83 acres of land where the big radio station will be located.

The radio corporation purchased the 83 acres of land in the salt marshes a mile and a half east of Huntington Beach from G. E. Neill, of Los Angeles, for approximately $550,000. The deal now is in escrow in the Orange County title company. G. Harold Porter, of San Francisco, divisional manager, representing the RCA in the deal.

Commercial messages from Southern California to points all over the world will be handled by the new station, which is not a broadcast station in the sense that musical programs for broadcast listeners are not the business of the transmitter. The company contracts with concerns to use the station's facilities in transmitting messages over the air. The messages are transmitted on short waves.

The Orange county station will be the third on the Pacific Coast, the other two being located near San Francisco and Seattle. Investigations by RCA engineers showed that the territory south of First street in Santa Ana down to the coast is almost perfect for radio reception and transmission, and that is the reason the site was chosen. The marshy land makes an excellent ground for the transmitters.

While the building which will house the transmitters will be comparatively small, the 83 acres is needed for the extensive antenna systems which RCA will erect. These antenna systems will be on 80-foot towers arranged so that miles of wire will be used in the antenna network. Construction will be of the most modern type.

The Orange county station will serve Southern California and part of the Orient and the Hawaiian Islands directly, and other points all over the United States and the world by relay through similar stations.

"APE MAN" DENIES SAN DIEGO CRIME
LOS ANGELES, March 30.—(UP)—Thomas E. Dugger, 30-year-old confessed "ape man" attacker of three women, today defiantly denied connection with other crimes in San Diego and Fresno.

"I've confessed I've beaten and attacked three Los Angeles women, and that is all," he told police. "You can search the land and you will not find any other crimes involving me."

Throughout a long questioning by detectives he denied knowledge of the murder of Celia Cota, 16, in San Diego, August 17.

Although admitting he was "near" Fresno at the time, he likewise denied knowledge of the fatal beating of Mrs. Bertha Blagg of Fresno last July.

Police said they would file six felony complaints against Dugger.

Allen late yesterday, charged with issuing a fictitious check to the damage of the Southern Counties Bank at Anaheim and the Bank of America in Fullerton. MEAT MERCHANTS FIGHT PRICE BOOST

Housewives in Santa Ana should be thankful that meat merchants are doing everything in their power to cooperate with them in trying to keep the cost of living down by not raising meat prices as high as they are in Los Angeles and other places, according to a statement made today by G. L. Oswald of the Fourth Street Market.

Local meat merchants, Oswald pointed out, have not taken advantage of the situation resulting from an increase in wholesale prices of meat to raise prices to a high point. A shortage of meat, naturally has caused some increase in prices, the meat merchant said, but meat retailers who maintain a high standard in regard to quality of meat, should merit the cooperation of shoppers because the merchants have kept the prices down as low as possible.

CAR DAMAGED IN ATTEMPT AT THEFT

The automobile of Bill Squires of Tustin was not stolen, but it showed much evidence of an attempt, according to reports filed at the sheriff's office.

The car was parked on 101 highway between the Valencia ballroom and Armstrong's, and to guard against thieves was locked. When Squires returned to enter the car and go home, he discovered that persistent car thieves had been there.

In their futile attempts to enter the car, they had broken both door handles and bent the air vent on the cowl. They also had tampered with the door locks so they wouldn't work, and Squires had to break the left rear glass of the car to climb in the window in order to enter his own machine to drive it home.

Court Sets Aside Judgment Against Prize Winners

The old court judgment against Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Atherton, formerly of Buena Park, which was revived in 1933 and arose to confront them after Mrs. Atherton won $50,000 with a sweepstakes ticket last fall, was set aside by Superior Judge G. K. Scovel late yesterday.

The court also recalled the execution of the judgment, which had been levied upon the automobile and the home of the Athertons at West Los Angeles, foreclosed at a sheriff's sale this week.

The judgment, originally granted for $5137 in 1926, in favor of the J. E. Walter company, former Anaheim automobile firm, was revived in 1933, when it amounted to $8214, because of accumulated interest and costs.

Attorneys for the Athertons presented a motion in court a week ago to set aside the revival of judgment, on the ground that the Walter company was then a defunct corporation, and therefore was unable to transact business, or sue or be sued. Judge Scovel took the matter under advisement until yesterday, when he announced his decision vacating the judgment, and recalling the execution of judgment.

Attorney H. C. Westover, representing the Walter company, announced today that he will appeal the decision while the appeal is pending the property of the Athertons will remain foreclosed, he said.

also last night from Avon where union pickets had been threatening its crew.

Its departure would precipitate a crisis in the strike and probably would result in a walkout of seamen employed on general cargo and passenger ships, observers believed.

Meanwhile the shortage in the northwest was alleviated somewhat by the arrival of the tanker District of Columbia at Portland, where it unloaded under police protection.

A survey showed Portland had a gasoline supply sufficient for two weeks, enough light fuel oil for 22 days, and sufficient heavy fuel oil and Diesel oil for 10 days. Seattle's gasoline supply will last 12 days and its fuel oil a week. Aberdeen has only a four-day supply with which to operate its electric light plant.

The mediation board appointed by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins continued conciliatory conferences here with strikers and employers. It was reported reliably that the union forces were ready to drop their demand for preferential employment of deck officers and submit it to arbitration, while the employers would grant preference to unlicensed union seamen.

Posts Second Bail After Failure To Appear In Court

Arrested last evening after he had failed to appear in superior court yesterday for arraignment on charges of manslaughter and failure to render aid after an automobile accident, Thomas R. Johnson, Orange junk dealer, posted a new bond of $5000 for his release, his original bond of that amount being declared forfeit by Judge James L. Allen yesterday, when he failed to appear.

Johnson declared, following his arrest, that he had been told to appear April 5 for arraignment. In the meantime, the district attorney's office decided to file the information yesterday with the court. The court was informed that Johnson had been notified. Johnson declared he had not.

The new arraignment date is set for April 5. Johnson was accused of the two offenses, together with Mrs. Alice Dalton Converse Pallister, of Santa Ana. The charges are based upon the death of William Malony in a traffic crash near Huntington Beach.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

WASHINGTON, March 30. (To the Editor of The Register): Thursday night Mrs. Rogers, Mary and I saw a fine comedy show in New York called "Three Men on a Horse". The idea is that a man that is not betting can do out the winners. Well, now get this for a coincidence. I fly down here this morning. And I meet the Lord Mayor of Dublin, Ireland. A lovely fine little Irish gentleman Well you would naturally ask an Irishman about the Grand National race at Aintree. For all the good horses in it are Irish. Well this little Lord Mayor gave them this morning. The following winners. Reynolds, Blue Prince, Thorman II. By golly if he didn't pick 'em one, two, three. So if the Lord Mayor of Ireland should be coming your way, no matter if he tells you "the Republicans have a chance," listen to him.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS,

Action was taken to have a mother and daughter banquet in the church on the evening of May 10. The committee in charge comprises Mrs. Charles Harvey, Mrs. J. F. Bergman, Mrs. Jones, Mrs. J. L. Cummings, Mrs. J. L. Van Ness.

Tehachapi and place the prison under jurisdiction of a women's board. There was strong opposition to it.

More important developments occurred in committees. The assembly revenue and taxation group gave favorable recommendations to administration-sponsored bills to levy a one per cent tax on real estate transfers and double the rate of bank and corporation franchise taxes. These two revenue sources would produce $21,000,000 biennially in new income, proponents estimated.

Death Notices

A WORD OF COMFORT

The highest form of praising God is doing your duty as well as you know how, provided you are conscientiously trying to do it for His sake.
It is of small value to you or to the world for you to endure hardships and griefs without whimpering merely to demonstrate your strength. Everything is different when you face the future bravely in order that you may be a worthy son of the Father who is caring for your dearest one in Paradise.
The first attitude makes you hard and unresponsive; the second makes you tender, sympathetic, and God-conscious. It beautifies your soul.

BOND ISSUES APPROVED IN TWO LOCALITIES

A heavy vote was recorded over the entire county yesterday, as school district elections were held in virtually every municipality with the exception of Santa Ana. In conjunction with school elections two bond issues were before the voters, one for $123,000 being passed in Seal Beach, and one for $25,000 being passed in the Centralia district.

Trustees for 11 high school districts were chosen, hot contests developing in the San Juan Capistrano, Valencia and Newport Harbor Union High school districts. Spirited voting for positions on the Centralia and Cypress district boards was recorded.

Repercussions from the recent political squabble at Cypress were felt as Steven Luther, political campaigner for Robert Cawthon, president of the board, was fined $10 in the Anaheim justice court on charges of assault. The action was brought as the result of a fight involving Luther and Samuel Miller day before yesterday.

Forces in Cypress favoring the passage of bonds at the election scheduled next Friday were conceded to have won a preliminary victory yesterday, with the reelection of Cawthon to the board by a margin of 26 votes over his opponent, Rollo L. Nicholas. The present board favors the passage of the bonds, for $58,000.

Centralia

Teo Siems, Hansen road rancher, was elected trustee for a three-year term by a margin of 14 votes, as the electorate passed $25,000 building bonds. George Marshall, incumbent, received 28 votes, D. P. Brougher, 50 votes, and Dr. R. D. Temple, 23.

San Juan Capistrano

In one of the hottest school board fights on record, Dr. Paul Esslinger and Carl Hankey, San Juan Capistrano, were elected members of the high school board, defeating Thomas Murphree, Jr., San Clemente. The total vote for the district, comprising Doheny Point, San Clemente and San Juan Capistrano, was Esslinger, 433; Hankey, 429, and Murphree, 402. In the entire district vote Dr. Esslinger received a total of 300 single votes, although two men were to be chosen.

Newport Harbor

W. B. Mellott and A. H. Fitzpatrick were elected trustees of the Newport Harbor Union High school district. Mellott receiving 832 votes and Fitzpatrick, 301, to defeat Ray Bell and A. M. Nelson. Both Fitzpatrick and Mellott were incumbents. Vernon Orr, president of the Newport Grammar School board, was unopposed for reelection.

Costa Mesa

In the grammar school district Walter West, incumbent, received 220 votes, and Mrs. J. D. Campbell received one vote.

Laguna Beach

William J. Harris was elected trustee of the Laguna Beach Union High school, defeating three candidates. The total vote was Harris, 190; Russell Hind, 100; Leslie Kimball, 97; Everett Tawney, 90.

FAITH IN S. A. EIGHT INJURED EXPRESSED BY R. C. HOLLES 2 PEDESTRIANS

When asked for a statement as to why he is moving to Santa Ana, R. C. Holles, new co-owner of the junior stock of The Register, said:

"I have invested in and moved to Santa Ana, not that I expect to be actively engaged in helping publish The Register, but because I believe Santa Ana has a bright future before it, and is a delightful place to live."

"As I expect to devote the greater part of my energies in other work that I am interested in, I am placing my son Clarence in charge of the business end of The Register. He has been associated with me in the newspaper business as manager of the Telegraph-Forum at Bucyrus, Ohio for the past eight years, besides his former newspaper experience with me at Alliance, Lorain and Mansfield, Ohio."

"I believe Santa Ana has a bright future because of the exceptional fertility of the soil in the county and splendid climate both for agriculture and as a delightful place to live."

"The oil and gas and cheap hydro-electric power, together with its close proximity to cheap water transportation, and its abundant supply of cheap food, should sooner or later develop considerable manufacturing and commerce for the territory."

"There seems to be no other place in the United States that has such a delightful climate and at the same time so many natural resources, all of which will certainly mean much to the future of Southern California, as distances are shortened by more rapid and economical transportation."

"Since I have arrived, I have seen as much building activity as in any other city in the country, and I have crossed the continent five times in the last year."

It has always been the policy of both of the Holles to take an active interest in all civic affairs of the community.

Clarence Holles, the new business manager of The Register, is interested in all civic affairs. While he was in Bucyrus, he served a year as president of the Chamber of Commerce and was president of the Rotary club when he left that city.

Mr. Holles, senior, is still financially interested in a half dozen newspapers in Ohio, so his moving to Santa Ana to live and transferring some of his financial interest to this county is a stronger testimonial as to his beliefs in the future development of this section of the country and as a residential city than anything he might say.

Two children were struck by automobiles and slightly injured and six other persons received minor injuries in a series of accidents throughout Orange county yesterday and last night.

Dolores Reyes, 7, said to have been playing in the roadway at Atwood, was knocked down by a car driven by Frank Villalobos of 443 Adams street, Los Angeles.

Four-year-old Junior Costello, of 514 North Artesia street, received a bloody nose when he ran into the path of a car driven by C. E. Manning of 401 South Garnsey street.

Mary Jane Belcher of 418 West Second street received a bruised knee when a car driven by Roger W. Fuller, 2395 North Flower street, crashed into the automobile of Dr. E. C. Prandoni as he was turning into his driveway at 2093 North Ross street.

Maxine Bingle, 13, of 1416 West Fourth street, received slight injuries when cars driven by Myrtle A. Paris, 26, of 1416 West Fourth and A. N. Bissell, 41, of company driver of 1208 South Ross, collided at the intersection of Ross and Pine streets.

Herman Schacht of 521 South Birch street, Santa Ana, and Ray Wells, Elmer Rowe and C. C. Johnson of Huntington Beach were slightly injured when cars driven by Wells and Schacht were wrecked at the corner of Delaware and Indianapolis streets in the beach city. All except Johnson, who was taken to the county hospital, were able to go home after receiving first aid treatment.

LEAGUE OPENS CAMPAIGN FOR COUNCIL GROUP

Distribution of 15,000 orange colored cards bearing the names of all candidates for municipal and school offices was started among voters of the city today by the Taxpayers' league, it was announced by A. G. Diehl, president, with headquarters at 208 West Fifth street.

Several crews were at work, and efforts will be made to place one of the cards in each home, Diehl said, to be used for the convenience of voters in taking copies of their choices to the polls next Monday to assist in marking their ballots.

"Do your part to reduce the tax burden. Vote the Taxpayers' ticket, for economy and good government," reads the heading above the endorsements of A. F. LeGaye, D. Jones Jr., John E. Hall, C. A. Harms and Steele Finley for city council positions. No recommendations for other offices were made by the league.

The back of the orange cards carries a copy of the LeGaye resolution, below which is a statement from the league as follows: "Four members of the present council refused to adopt this resolution when it was presented by LeGaye."

"Vote for the Taxpayers Ticket, indicated by the (X) marks on the other side of this card, and you will elect experienced business men who are publicly pledged to carry out this resolution for the benefit of all taxpayers and citizens."

"They will eliminate waste, and out of savings, raise the wages of underpaid city employees and use their best efforts towards remunerative, productive employment for all Santa Ana workers."

"They will work for progress for the city, but without burdensome taxes, useless bond issues or special assessments."

"Here is your direct opportunity to vote for simplified, human, economical government, in behalf of all the people."

"Do your part for tax economy by supporting the Taxpayers' Ticket on April 8."

News Behind the News

WASHINGTON

By Paul Mallen

JUMBO-COLOSS

Secretary Lokes got quite a shock when he saw the press dispatches from Florida a few days ago. These dispatches, written by newsmen accompanying President Roosevelt, announced that Harry Hopkins was to be the jumbo-colossus of the new relief program. Now, Mr. Lokes knew, which the average news reader may not, that presidential newsmen do not make such things up out of their heads. Only two persons could have inspired that story, Mr. Roosevelt or Mr. Hopkins.

You can imagine how that made Mr. Lokes feel. Here he has been the jumbo-colossus of the PWA for many months, and has aspirations. To add insult to injury, the dispatches mentioned that "perhaps, Mr. Lokes, among others," would be permitted to help Mr. Hopkins.

Mr. Lokes put on his hat and coat and went to the White House.

SOOTHING SYRUP

There, standing guard, during the President's absence, was Stephen Early, who is a diplomat as well as a secretary. Mr. Early is supposed to have worked on Mr. Lokes' brow, unruffling it. At least he gave out an official announcement that Mr. Roosevelt himself would run the new relief program. There would be no jumbo-colossus.

UNCERTAINTIES

This would have saved the inside situation, except for one thing. Mr. Hopkins has one relief plan. Mr. Early has an entirely different one. While Mr. Lokes has not been seen much around the White House lately, Mr. Hopkins was significantly invited to accompany the President on the train as far as Jacksonville.

That is the way it goes. The uncertainty of business, if any, is insignificant compared with uncertainty among White House favorites. One day, you are sitting happily on the Presidential knee. Next day, you may be on the floor, wondering how you got there.

Consequently the Florida dispatches conveyed a hint that the Hopkins plan had the edge over the Lokes plan. Furthermore, certain Congressmen started grumbling that if this plan was all fixed they should find out what it was before they passed the relief bill authorizing Mr. Roosevelt to carry it out.

The result was that a second placating announcement was made from the White House. It said no plan would be decided on until Mr. Roosevelt returns.

CERTAINTIES

This may sound like a very muddled situation, but it is not. The only part muddled was the Jacksonville end of the publicity. Someone did too much talking, too soon.

Unless Mr. Lokes succeeds in forcing a revision of the plan, it is a certainty that it will work out something like this:

Mr. Roosevelt will run it. Mr. Hopkins will have the biggest job in it, the job of creating immediate work relief. Admiral Peoples will run the Federal building program. Prof. Tugwell will run the rural rehabilitation end. This will leave Mr. Lokes the tail end, the remnants of the PWA (slum clearance and perhaps a few other odds and ends).

EXPLANATION

This does not imply any lack of confidence in Mr. Lokes on the part of the White House or anyone else. It is a simple truth that he has been handling more than any one man could. Furthermore, certain Senators say they have received a promise from the White House that Mr. Lokes would not control the new set-up. Congress always gets its man.

WHERE

A confidential survey has been made of the relief rolls by the FERA crowd. It shows very simply what the problem is. It answers the two big questions of where the relief rollers are and who they are.

More than half of them are in 142 cities of the country.

For instance, California has 206,781 on relief, and 201,615 are in the five cities of Los Angeles, Oakland, Sacramento, San Diego and San Francisco.

New York state has 472,780 on the rolls and 402,958 of them in the six cities of Albany, Buffalo, New York, Rochester, Syracuse, Utica.

Ohio has 276,887, and 219,152 in eight big cities.

The major portion of the relief problem, therefore, is in the cities.

WHO

The survey further shows that nearly one-half (exactly 44 per cent) are factory workers. They were formerly employed in the manufacturing and mechanical industries. The next largest group was in domestic and personal service trades, then follow the groups of transportation and communication workers, salesmen and clerical workers.

Professional people are far down in the list, with teachers heading that group.

The building trades (the only one helped by PWA) account for fewer than one-fourth of those on relief.

SOLUTION

The program must be adapted to the unemployed, not the unemployed to the program. Types of work must be furnished which they can do, and the work must be furnished where they are.

Therefore, more than half of it must be in the cities or adjacent to them, and it must be the type of work which can be performed by factory workers, etc.

This shows how foolish are the politico-statesmen who are continually crying for tremendous building projects to solve the entire relief problem. It shows also that the new program must be highly diversified, and carefully segregated.

You can see that more than half of it must be a glorified CWA. You can see also why Hopkins is getting the big end of the job.

NEW YORK

By James McMillin

SHUDDER

The railway brotherhoods don't get as much publicity as the American Federation of Labor but their lobbying groceries, Bills have been introduced in more than 20 state legislatures to increase freight rates, limit the length of freight trains, shorten working hours, etc. This is in addition to the 6-hour day proposal pending in Congress. The roads are alarmed to discover that a number of these bills have a chance for passage and are making a belated but desperate effort to block them.

General Atterbury's attack on them, Railroad's report, 1934 was the first shot in what will become a heavy barrage.

The brotherhood technique of stirring up these issues by states rather than nationally is neat. It makes the roads' defense problem much more difficult—especially as the specific point of assault varies in different states. Nevada has already adopted a train limit which annoys the Southern Pacific intensely. It has to break up many of its freight trains before crossing the state border and put them together again on the other side.

There are bills in various legislative hoppers which experts estimate would add a billion dollars a year to railroad operating expenses if they were all enacted. Probably only a few of them will be—but the possibilities have the industry's leaders in a continual shudder.

TRIUMPH

British bankers may want to go back to gold but they're up against stiff domestic opposition. The London Chamber of Commerce—with 60,000 members representing commerce and industry—is resolutely against any return to a metallic standard. Its political influence is growing fast while that of Montagu Norman and the banking set-up is slipping.

The industrial viewpoint is expressed in a letter from Sir William Dampier which recently appeared at the top of the principal correspondence column of the London Times. He stresses the point that sterling is maintaining its purchasing power in terms of commodities almost unchanged and that the fall of sterling merely affects gold and the currencies linked to it—not the pound itself.

New York observers remark that the strong industrial element in England is likely to rate the collapse of the gold bloc a triumph rather than a catastrophe.

GRATIFIED

German industrial satisfaction at the restoration of military conscription is grounded on something more substantial than nationalist pride.

Informed New Yorkers are convinced that Hitler's move to expand his army was primarily a matter of labor policy even though the rest of the world interprets it otherwise. The pressure of unemployed German youth on the social and economic structure has been terrific. There was no chance of their absorption into industry under present conditions—and they were a constant menace to internal stability while on the loose.

Conscription goes a long way toward solving the problem. Not only will the young men be kept out of mischief but their needs as soldiers will transform them from a national liability—draining relief resources—into an element which promotes industrial activity. Small wonder German business is "gratified."

SLAPPED

Financial circles are convinced that Emile Francœur—Belgian industrial leader—means business when he threatens the British iron masters with reprisals unless England quits squeezing Belgian exporters with the cheap pound. The Belgian steel makers are strong enough to make plenty of trouble for competitors from other nations if they choose. Insiders also believe that the Belgians may be used to harass British trade just as the Japanese yen has been maneuvered for that purpose.

If a struggle develops along these lines the American steel industry would be cast as he who gets slapped. Its foreign business would be carved out from under it and even its sales at home would probably be hurt by cheaper foreign competition. Secretary Hull's vaunted trade treaty with Belgium would only make matters worse by slashing the tariff on Belgian steel. The boys have plenty to say about that treaty privately—but not in printable terms.

SALVAGE

Governor Lehman has hauled up the white flag in his backstage tiff with Secretary Wallace. Since his plan for an inter-state milk commission independent of the AAA collapsed he has had to appeal to the AAA for help.

He managed a graceful retreat. While the AAA will be in control he salvaged the chairmanship of an advisory committee composed of state representatives for his Commissioner of Farms and Markets—Peter Ten Eyck.

TAXES

A large utility group has just finished computing its 1934 taxes—federal, state and local. The local comes to almost three times its entire fuel cost and to almost half its entire wage bill. An executive remarks: "I wish our friends in Washington would quit picking on us long enough to explain how the heck we're supposed to lower rates with a set-up like that."

COUSINS

"The country . . . badly needs reassurance. If it were satisfied that there was method and not mere improvisation in the government's plans, the present widespread lack of confidence would be quickly dissipated."

The source is not the National Association of Manufacturers or the American Liberty League—it's a British economic weekly. Observers remark it goes to show that at least the conservatives of both countries are cousins under the skin.

TWO ACTIONS FILED AGAINST DEFENDANT

Coinciding with the filing of a divorce suit in superior court by Mrs. Dorothy Doane Boyer against Nelson D. Boyer, the district attorney's office filed an information against Nelson D. Boyer also in superior court, charging him with grand theft of an automobile belonging to Mrs. Frank W. Doane.

The divorce complaint charged that on the day of the Boyer's separation March 12, the same date the theft of Mrs. Doane's automobile is charged to have occurred. Boyer beat his wife while she was in bed, striking her with a rock on both sides of her head, choking her, and whipping her with a wide leather belt. He then deserted her, she alleged.

Boyer was not arraigned yesterday on the theft charge, which was filed before Superior Judge James L. Allen.

The first meeting will be devoted to a discussion of a program of summer concerts to be given in the city park. The merchants and manufacturers group has outlined a program for presentation at the joint meeting in April whereby each service club will sponsor one concert.

Arrangements for the meeting of April 10 are being made by the following committee members: Glen Merrill, Kiwanis; George Reid, Rotary; Frank Tausch, Lions; Mrs. Charles Pearson, Business and Professional Women; Charles Busch, 20-30 club; and all members of the chamber of commerce.

NEGRO BANDIT HOLDS UP GAS STATION AGENT

ANAHEIM, March 30.—Thrusting an automatic pistol into the face of the attendant a negro last night held up the General Petroleum service station at the intersection of Helena and Center streets. Taking $10 from the cash register the bandit fled north on Helena street.

According to police the holdup was staged just before 10 o'clock last night. The attendant had gone to an incinerator at the rear of the station to empty a trash basket. As he turned to go back into the station the negro thrust a gun into his face. Forcing the attendant to accompany him, the bandit entered the station and took the money from the register.

Police were called immediately, but could not locate the man. He was described as being about 28 years old and was tall and slender. He was wearing a cap and dirty dark suit. The description was broadcast on the police radio and a county-wide search started.

HERE is a new low-priced car, the first to combine the efficiency of modern air-line design with true dignity and beauty.

However, despite its price, not everyone can own this Hupmobile. The care and skill that go into its construction forbid haste, and limit the number that can be built.*

It has always been Hupp's policy to pioneer principles . . . and let others sponsor fads and fancies. That explains why so often, when Hupp announces a new car, it proves to be a sensation.

May we suggest, if you are to be the "one" of the "one in a thousand," that you lose no time in telephoning us for a demonstration.

ADVICE GIVEN BY CITY P.-T. A. ON NEW FILMS

Recommendations regarding recently released motion pictures previewed by the California Congress of Parents and Teachers were made public today through Mrs. M. W. Hollingsworth, chairman of the motion picture committee of the Santa Ana Council of Parents and Teachers. Comment on the pictures previewed follows:

"Death Flies East," Columbia production with Conrad Nagel, Florence Rice, Irene Franklin and Oscar Apfel. "A mystery story that starts well, grows jerky and reaches a flat, implausible conclusion. Adults, fair; 14-18, doubtful; 8-14, unsuitable."

"Don Quixote," Vander-Nelson Films production with Feodor Chaliapin, George Robey and Sidney Fox. "Cervantes' fanciful story of Don Quixote is faithfully and artistically screened. The acting and singing of Chaliapin are memorable. Adults, good; 14-18, very good; 8-14, too mature."

"The Wedding Night," United Artists production with Anna Sten, Gary Cooper, Ralph Bellamy, Helen Vinson and Siegfried Rumann. "The eternal triangle, developed with dignity and acted excellently, is the basis of this mature tragedy. An author, betrayed from his wife and bereft of his illusions, finds his inspiration return through the sincere love for a small Polish peasant girl who has already been betrothed to her father's choice. Adults, excellent; 8-18, no."

"When a Man's a Man," Fox production with George O'Brien, Paul Kelly, Dorothy Wilson and Harry Woods. "What magic the great outdoors has in the remodeling of a spendthrift tenderfoot never-do-well is demonstrated in this cattle country drama of a typical western brand. Family and junior matinees. Adults, slow; 8-18, fair."

ANNUAL JUNIOR COLLEGE FIESTA DATE SET MAY 10; FIRST IN NEW LOCATION

By JAMES TORRENS

With a gala display of Spanish costumes and sparkling dancers, Santa Ana Junior college will celebrate its eighth annual Fiesta on the grounds of the Board of Education building May 10, under the chairmanship of Lucian Wilson, when high school seniors of the southern part of Orange county are invited to spend a day in the Spanish atmosphere of the Don institution.

Each year the Dons drop their tasks and manners of modern life, and re-live the days when Spanish caballeros basked in the warm sunshine of Southern California, and gay señoritas danced the bailes of their romantic country. In preparation for the day Dons wear side-burns as did the conquistadores, and both men and women don velvets and laces of a more colorful day.

Although definite plans as to speakers, entertainers and other portions of the program have not as yet been formulated, Wilson said that the usual afternoon dance and the evening play will be held, along with the arena program for the day. Since the college is in new headquarters this year, there will be some changes in the nature and location of the festival. Visiting seniors will be guests at a dinner given by the college, according to precedent.

Reigning sovereigns of the day, the Don and Dona, will be crowned at an impressive ritual which is a tradition with the college, although this performance suffers from the loss of the Rev. Father St. John O'Sullivan, who performed the ceremony of the coronation until his death shortly before the Fiesta last year.

Past Dons and Donas have been Pete Lehr and Flora Groenow, who reigned over the first Fiesta held on the old college campus at Ross and Walnut streets in 1928. In 1929 Baxter Geeting and Margaret Clantoni assumed the roles of Don and Dona for the day.

Abbot Mason and Mary McHenry were crowned by the priest in 1930, and in 1931 George Griffith and Maybelle Ball were reigning Don and Dona.

Charles Stehly and Ione De Remer assumed the roles of Fiesta Rey and Reina in 1932. Gene Hall and Helen Bower occupied the thrones at the 1933 celebration, and last year the role of Sovereign was assumed by Glenn Bishop and Harriett Abrams.

Each year Don and Dona are chosen by popular vote of the jaycee students. T. H. Glenn, Jaycee English head, acts as faculty director for the Fiesta each year.

FAMED CELLIST TO PRESENT CONCERT

CLAREMONT, March 30.—Gregor Platigorsky, renowned Russian cellist, will present the sixth concert of the Claremont Colleges Artist Course in Bridges auditorium on the evening of April 2.

Regarded as one of the two greatest living cellists, Platigorsky has long been desired as an artist in the Claremont series. He was originally scheduled for an appearance on April 2 as guest artist with the Philharmonic Orchestra, but the April recess of the orchestra made it impossible to carry out this plan. The Artist Course management, at considerable added expense, is therefore presenting Mr. Platigorsky in a solo concert on the date scheduled, and has arranged for a concert by the orchestra when it reconvenes in May. The date for this additional concert, which is presented without extra cost to season ticket holders, will be announced later. Otto Klemperer will conduct.

Platigorsky's program for Tuesday evening is announced as follows: Concerto in G major (Bach); Sonata (Francoeur); Sonata in A major, Opus 69 (Beethoven); Adagio and Allegro (Schumann); Largo and Rondo (Weber); Russian Dance (Lia-dow); Habanera (Revel); and Zapateado (Sarasate).

Hold 'Rube' Program At H. B. Monday

HUNTINGTON BEACH, March 30.—Following an established custom in the local high school, the first of April will be observed as "Rube's day." Class periods will run in the usual manner of a short day, there being five periods in the morning. Immediately after lunch an assembly will be held, the feature of which will be awarding prizes for the best costumes.

A program of burlesque skits, songs and dances will be given. Following the program there will be a dance in the gymnasium.

LAGUNA BEACH FIRMS MOVE TO NEW QUARTERS

LAGUNA BEACH, March 30.—Changes in location of several retail firms and arrival of new ones, now under way or planned, made necessary by clearing of sites for new business structures or because of extensive alterations to existing structures, include a number of well known concerns.

Premises occupied by the Russell Antique and Gift shop, 377 Coast boulevard, south, were being vacated today and the merchandise was shipped to the store operated by Mrs. Alice Russell on Los Feliz boulevard in Los Angeles. The building housing the Russell store, inquiries revealed, has been sold to the Consolidated Mortgage company, and the new owners are planning extensive alterations to the structure. Mrs. Russell and her daughter, Miss Jean Russell, intimated that they would seek a new location for the Laguna store.

The old fish market at the corner of Coast boulevard and Ocean avenue, a popular landmark and for years the rendezvous of Waltonians wanting bait and tackle, will be moved into the Red Hen Food market. Another new concern to move into the spacious premises of the Red Hen market is John Ender's bakery of Huntington Beach.

Benton's confectionery is also forced to give up its present location, because of extensive alterations to the building, and is moving to the store room formerly occupied by Bothamley's jewelry. Close to Benton's new location is the new Currie's Ice Cream parlor, which will open up soon.

McClellan, Ikeda, Scovill and Onori.

Fancy tumbling was done by Myers, Phoenix, Estus, Hommel, Boyd, Carlson, Salisbury, Andrews, Lumel, W. Collins, McClellan, Vile and Jordan, and a battle royal was staged by Lockwood, Onori, Suttora, Staffer, Stouther and Sofforth.

Ralph K. Reed, physical education teacher, was general manager of the event. He was assisted by E. A. Rea and L. Thompson, instructors, and students, Phoenix, Kesel, Siloris, Pilkinton, Merrick and Pearce.

MAKERS OF WAR MUNITIONS HIT IN BEACH TALK

LAGUNA BEACH, March 30.—Conscientious objectors to military service were defended and munition makers were scored in an address delivered here Thursday evening at Hotel Laguna by Dr. George A. Cox, educator, lecturer and writer, formerly connected with the Teachers' college of Columbia university, Northwestern university and the University of Southern California. Mrs. Samuel Lee, Caldwell, president of the University Women's club of Laguna Beach, presided over the lecture, which was given under the auspices of that organization.

Claims Partnership
The speaker asserted there is a silent and effective partnership between the munition makers and the governments in the world, which, though not reduced to formal agreements, subsists on mutual interest and dependency. This condition obtains in most countries and explains the power possessed by the munition makers in influencing the affairs of nations, he declared. He went on to say that governments, dependent upon the munition industry for supplies in time of war, naturally desire to see it prosper within their respective borders. He also added that as a matter of securing a market for their goods, the munition makers find it to their advantage to promote strife among nations.

Publicity Urged
Dr. Cox made it plain that he was opposed to nationalization of the munitions industry on the grounds that it would result in the militarization of a large number of workers and increase taxation. He thought that government control of the industry by means of licensing the plants and giving publicity to their activities would be the best way of handling the situation.

In the course of his remarks, the university professor also intimated that high ranking officers of the army and navy were indirectly promoting the interests of the munition makers by urging preparedness for defensive purposes.

His observations were resented by Mrs. Florence F. Irons, prominent club woman and widow of the late Brigadier General Irons, who told the women present that the officers of the two services do not want war any more than they themselves. Mrs. Irons called attention to the fact it was the duty of the officers in charge of the army and the navy to make necessary preparations for the defense of the country. She also referred to the splendid record of the men who served in the Philippine period assisted the natives building up their country and establishing an orderly government.

Tells Strike Sympathy

Answering questions from the audience, Dr. Cox made it clear that he was opposed to military training in educational institutions and in sympathy with the "anti-war" student strike set for April 12. In answer to a query from the floor of what would be the fate of the country if attacked in a defenseless state, he limited himself to a prediction there is no danger of the United States being invaded by a foreign foe.

"INVITATION TO MURDER" DRAWS CROWD AT LAGUNA

LAGUNA BEACH, March 30.—Before a packed house that filled every seat and caused the S. R. O. sign to be posted long before the curtain went up, the Community Players of Laguna Beach last night at their playhouse on Ocean avenue presented "Invitation to a Murder," a mystery play written by Rufus King which last year scored a big success on Broadway. The play, it was reported, has been bought by one of the major Hollywood motion picture companies for presentation on the screen. The show will be repeated tonight.

The play, replete with thrills and strange experiences which lead to an unexpected climax, was directed by George Dunham, assisted by Mrs. Elizabeth Pierce. It provided an excellent vehicle for the display of local thespian talent and the audience extended to the players every mark of enthusiastic approval. Miss Dorcas Pilling played the role of "Lorinda Channing" held the spotlight of the evening, and won continuous applause by her acting. She was well supported by Dean Benton in the role of "Dr. Linton" and Ed Hobart as the silent but yet all knowing and observing butler. Others who contributed to the success of the production were Harry Griggs, Raymond Grimes, Barbara Read, Halmar Forrest and Leslie Kimmell in their respective parts.

Others assisting in the staging of the play were Mrs. Mary Langley Herrick, production manager; Miss Lorraine Pardee, who designed the sets; Volney Tanner and Richard Malone in charge of the lighting, and Mrs. Claire McCullough, properties.

Men in New York subway trains folded their newspapers, read the headlines and shook their heads. Women in San Francisco—mothers with sons of their own—read the same paragraphs and sighed. Middle-western farmers, resting after the day's work, looked up from their reading long enough to say, "It's an outrage, that's what it is. An outrage!"

And thousands of others, all over the country, repeated the words. The death of Steve Meyers, the young silk mill employee who had died from injuries said to have been received when he was trying to defend himself from lawless thugs who had broken into a peaceful meeting of the First workers, stirred nation-wide indignation. The young man, news paper accounts pointed out, was the only support of a widowed mother, a steady, dependable workman.

Moreover, there were charges that the ruffians who had clubbed Meyers so brutally had been paid by the mill management. Others who had attended the interrupted meeting, notably a certain Joseph Gillespie, gave graphic descriptions of what had happened.

Editorials expressing protests were published. Sermons were preached. Cartoons championing the rights of the workers were drawn. And in Washington a rotund man in a gray suit faced another, seated at a desk. The rotund man said, "Well, Chief, I'm off to-

Editorials expressing protests were published. Sermons were preached. Cartoons championing the rights of the workers were drawn. And in Washington a rotund man in a gray suit faced another, seated at a desk. The rotund man said, "Well, Chief, I'm off tonight. I was going to send Churchill, but I think it's better to go myself. It's the same case we had the report on last week. Things seem to be even worse than they were presented. Flagrant violations, open defiance—"

"How about that western trip?" "Going to postpone it. I tell you this thing is pressing! It calls for immediate action!"

"Yes. I think you're right. What time did you say you were leaving?"

"Seven-thirty. I'm taking the first train."

"The man at the desk nodded. 'Let me have a report as soon as you can get it ready. I'm interested.'"

"I will, Chief." The man in the gray suit raised a hand in a gesture of farewell and turned toward the door.

Gale Henderson, walking up the street slowly, watched the ball of flame that was the late afternoon sun slip behind the tree tops. It was a gorgeous sun. In 20 minutes—perhaps less—the sky would be a riot of color.

Sad that anything so beautiful as a sunset should last such a short time—or was it?

Gale thought, "The good things and bad things are so mixed up—"

It did seem true. For everything that caused happiness and made the world brighter must there always be something sad? Gale had good news tonight. She should have been happy. Well, she was. Of course she was happy, knowing Phil would be home the next day! The lawyer had told her so less than an hour earlier. The lawyer who was so young-looking and who had so little experience had done great things for Phil. He had worked hard—with impressive results.

For one thing, he had discovered that the gun the policeman had taken from Phil's pocket, the one Phil was accused of firing, had been bought less than six weeks before by Ed Vogel's friend, Stroude. He had also talked to a woman who had watched the street fight from a nearby window. The woman said (and she was willing to give her testimony in court) that she had seen the gun in Stroude's hand just as someone struck him. The discharge, she was sure, was ac-

CHURCH GROUP MEETS

GREENVILLE, March 30.—Meeting at the home of Mrs. Anna Kuffel recently, executive officers of the missionary society of the Greenville-Talbert churches held a business meeting at which reports of the quarter were made out for missionary headquarters.

A social time followed the business meeting and Mrs. Kuffel served homemade candies. Present were the Rev. and Mrs. E. A. Moody, Mrs. M. V. Knott, Miss Lenora Blakey, Mrs. Lydia Clayton and Mrs. Kuffel, R. Ramey and U. G. Kuffel.

TUSTIN CIRCLE MEETS

TUSTIN, March 30.—The regular meeting of the Altruistic circle of the Pythian Sisters was held this week at the lodge hall, with Mesdames Laura Sanborn, Fannie Cunningham and Margaret Culver in charge of the potluck luncheon enjoyed at 12:30 o'clock. The morning and afternoon hours were devoted to quilting and making card tables.

Those present were Mesdames Bertha Trickey, Lottie Nordstrom, Gladys Pierson, Yvette Shelden, Cary Reynolds, Nola Jones, Sarah May Matthews, Margaret Culver, Lena M. Walker, Fannie Cunningham, Hazel Harbour, Eva Hoffer, Vera Comer, Carrie Stearns, Laura Sanborn, Miss Thelma Trickey and Dr. Estelle Workman.

Gale, deep in her thoughts, did not hear the friendly voice calling until her name rang in the air a second time. Then she turned and saw Mrs. O'Connor was walking rapidly, not a dozen yards behind. Her round figure was buttoned into a coat so tight that the closing gaped. The green feather bobbing at the rear of her black hat looked rather like the tail of a kite. But the face beneath the hat radiated kindness and Mrs. O'Connor's voice was one of cheery good will.

Gale waited as the older woman came up, puffing. "You just heard the news," Mrs. O'Connor said. "Charlie Hoskins told me at the grocery store—I mean about Phil comin' home tomorrow. My, but I'll be you're happy! Does your father know? I'm that glad for all of you!"

"I am happy," Gale admitted. "Here—let me take some of those packages. No, father hasn't heard about it yet. I'm on my way to tell him now."

"It'll be better than any medicine," Mrs. O'Connor prophesied. "How's he been feelin' lately?"

"Not any too well. So many things have been happening—" "Yes," Mrs. O'Connor sighed sympathetically. "Ain't it been awful? Troubles never come single, they do say—and it's the truth. Well, I hope we've seen the last for a while."

"They were so on the main street of the mill village. Ahead, perilously rounding a corner, a green automobile appeared. It was a roadster, driven by a girl in brown.

Mrs. O'Connor said, "Vicky Thatcher—and drivin' like mad. Wouldn't you think her father—my land, that's him with her!"

The green car disappeared and turned into the state highway. It picked up speed. Instead of discouraging his daughter's driving, Robert Thatcher said, "Step on it, can't you? We've got to make that plane."

Gale had heard others say Steve had died a hero's death. Well,

CHAPTER I

MILLCENT GRAVES glanced from her new fur coat, which was visible through the open door of the coat closet, to the clock.

The clock showed 5:35, and George Drimgold hadn't yet returned to sign the mail.

Her capable fingers flew over the keys of the typewriter, finishing the last stereotyped "Beg to remain, very truly yours," of the voluminous correspondence.

The outer door opened with explosive violence. George Drimgold pushed toward his private office.

"Come in, Miss Graves," he said. "Bring a notebook." Millicent frowned.

There was a stack of mail that would take 10 or 15 minutes to fold, seal, and stamp. Of late this overtime work had been getting to be a habit with Drimgold, and Millicent Graves had made up her mind that she'd tell him, in a nice way, that just a little more consideration would give her time to freshen up a bit before dinner.

But Millicent, however, was hardly in a position to become firm with her employer tonight. She had a favor to ask. So she sighed, picked up her notebook, and followed George Drimgold into the private office.

Drimgold stared at her with eyes which glittered strangely. Millicent Graves didn't notice the signs of inner emotion. A sudden surge of valor possessed her. She acted upon impulse, and heard her own voice speaking, almost before she realized what she was doing.

"Mr. Drimgold," she said, "I wonder if it would be possible for me to get an advance on next month's salary? It happens that I've had some rather heavy expenses this month, and . . ."

"No," he told her shortly. "I'm sorry, but it's impossible."

"Very well," she said with dignity. "It's after 5 o'clock. Your mail is ready for signing. Shall I get it?"

"Not yet. I've got something to dictate to you."

"It's after 5."

HE said irritably, "I don't care what time it is. I told you I've got some dictation. You're going to have to work tonight. You'll have to eat downtown. There's a tearoom in the block."

She could feel the pulse pounding in her throat. She realized now that Drimgold was in a most irritable mood. Yet, having started to assert her rights, she didn't intend to stop.

"What I am about to dictate, Miss Graves," Drimgold said, "is of the utmost importance. I don't want to be interrupted."

"Before we start in on that dictation," Millicent Graves said firmly, "there's the question of finances and overtime. I know that jobs are scarce, Mr. Drimgold, but it takes virtually every cent that I can make in order to live."

"I noticed you flashed out with a new fur coat," he retorted sarcastically.

"Yes, I did," she said, "and I needed it. It was a bargain I couldn't pass up. I paid for it out of my own money. You don't have to give me an advance if you don't want to. On the other hand, I certainly don't have to work overtime for you. As it happens, I can't do it tonight. I haven't enough money to even pay for my dinner."

Drimgold frowned, thrust a hand into his trousers pocket, pulled out a roll of bills. He hesitated a moment, then replaced the bills. From his other pocket he took some silver and slid a 50-cent piece across the desk to her.

"You can get enough to eat," he said, "for half a dollar. I'll pay for the meal. I won't pay for overtime. If you don't want this position, I can get others who do."

Millicent Graves pushed back her chair. Despite herself, her voice rose.

"That's the thing that I hate about you!" she screamed. "Your lack of consideration—your penny-pinching tactics. It took two girls to do your work before I came here. I'm doing the work of both of those girls at one girl's salary. Even then, I wouldn't mind the work if you'd be decent about it. You treat a girl like a slave, and I'm not going to be a slave. I don't care how scarce jobs are. I'm going to get a raise or I'm going to quit."

She heard one of the janitors moving around in the other office, and realized her voice had been high-pitched with rage.

"You don't need to quit," Drimgold shouted. "You're fired!"

"Very well," she said, and closed her book with a vicious snap.

Her hand was on the knob of the door as Drimgold's voice, strangely changed, reached her ears. "Wait a minute," he pleaded. "Let's be reasonable. I need you. I've got some most important dictation. You can't leave me now. I'm all upset. Please forgive me."

* * *

SHE turned to stare at him, and suddenly realized that the man was speaking the simple truth. She hesitated for a moment, then came back to the dictating table, spread out her notebook, and said frostily, "Very well. What is it, a letter?"

"No," said Drimgold slowly, "it's a confession."

Despite herself, she felt quick sympathy as she saw the expression on his face.

"I'm going to dictate this confession," he said. "You're going to write it out. Then I'm going to sign it, and you'll witness it. Please take this down, Miss Graves. To whom it may concern: This is to certify that I, George Drimgold, of the age of 48 years, am guilty of being an accessory to a murder."

"I am not guilty of that murder. I do, however, know the guilty party. For years I have protected this party and have myself shared in the benefits which accrued from that murder."

"In order to make this confession intelligible at this late date, it is necessary for me to set forth certain facts. These facts can best be explained by certain documentary evidence, certain newspaper clippings which I will quote herein at length."

Drimgold paused in his dictation, turned to the wall safe above his desk. His fingers touched the knob of the combination; then he turned to Millicent Graves.

"I've got to get some documents," he said. "Go ahead and get that mail. I'll sign it. Then you can get it in the mail chute."

She went to the outer office, returned with the stack of mail, placed it on the desk in front of him. He signed the letters with a firm, steady hand. She folded the mail, placed it in the envelopes, sealed and stamped the envelopes. Drimgold took some papers from the wall safe, started pawing through them, arranging them in some sort of a sequence.

"Go get yourself something to eat," he said, without looking up. "Lock the door as you go out. I don't want to be disturbed. Be sure the door's locked. If you see a woman in a black ermine coat, with a big collar up around her face, don't let her in under any circumstances. If she's in the corridor when you come back from dinner, don't unlock the office door. Go some place and telephone me. I'll answer the telephone. And don't be long."

"Very well, Mr. Drimgold," Millicent said, with mechanical silence, but she was thinking that the dinner she could buy at the tea room for 50 cents wouldn't unreasonably detain her.

* * *

SHE stood in front of the mirror, giving finishing touches to her face, and thinking of Drimgold's strange confession. She might have known it was something like that. No man who was guilty of the petty, chiseling tactics George Drimgold used could be quite the pillar of society that he liked to simulate.

She snuggled into her fur coat, scooped up the mail, snapped an elastic band around the pack of letters, took care to throw the spring lock on the door into position, nodded to the assistant janitor as she stepped out into the corridor.

She went to the elevator, dropped her letters down the mail chute, pulled her coat tightly around her figure as she met the cold wind of the street. The tingling air felt good to her skin. She fought her way to the lighted tea room. After all, it was frightfully high priced. However, they did have nice food, and there was a woman who told fortunes with the tea leaves, who went from table to table.

Millicent Graves suddenly realized that her own future was going to cause her some concern. Drimgold had told her she was fired. Quite probably he was serious.

She pushed the door and entered the welcome warmth of the tea room.

She hung up the fur coat where she could keep an eye on it, dropped her purse to a chair beside her and consulted the menu.

She could, she saw, get some chicken croquettes and tea and still leave a 10-cent tip for the waitress out of the 50 cents Drimgold had given her. The croquettes, she knew, were small and entirely unsatisfying as fuel to fortify herself against the cold ride home. However, if she had the small steak at 50 cents, it would mean there was no tip for the girl, and the waitress looked tired. Probably she, too, was overworked and underpaid.

Millicent decided on the croquettes, and gave her order. She took a cigaret from her purse and was holding a match to it when her eyes suddenly snapped to quick attention. A woman, with a coat of black ermine wrapped around her, had entered the tea room. She walked with quick, nervous steps. Millicent couldn't see her face, but she could glimpse a coldly baleful eye.

Then the woman in the ermine coat swept past her and took the table just back of the one where Millicent sat.

* * *

MILLCENT ate in slow, thoughtful silence. The woman, dressed as a gypsy, whose duty it was to tell fortunes, came across the room toward her, eyes smiling, white teeth gleaming from between red lips.

"I feel," she said, "that you're going to have a very interesting fortune. Have you finished your tea?"

Millicent smiled wanly. "Really," she said, "I'm not particularly interested, and I haven't any money for a tip if you should give me a good fortune."

The woman sank into a chair beside her, pulled Millicent's tea cup across the table, said, "I do this because I like it. I'm called to do it, you know. Many times I can save people from misfortune."

She stared steadily down into the few tea leaves in the bottom of the tea cup.

Abruptly she stiffened. "Look," said the fortune teller. "Look at the way those leaves are arranged. See how black they are, and notice this leaf which has twisted its edges."

"What do they mean?" Millicent inquired. "Dark deeds of violence," the fortune teller said. "There's murder in the tea cup."

"Murder!" Millicent exclaimed. "Not yours," the gypsy said hastily. "The murder of someone who's close to you. There's danger to you, but you're not going to be murdered. The danger comes from a woman. I can't see her clearly. She's menacing you, and yet she's the woman you'd least suspect."

Millicent hastily pushed the tea cup away. "I've heard enough," she said irritably. "I'm tired and nervous, and I don't want to hear any more of your predictions."

The gypsy scraped back her chair from the table. "I'm sorry," she said. "Genuinely sorry. I've only told you because I thought you should be warned."

Millicent flashed her a quick glance, and saw that the gypsy's face was white and strained.

"Please forgive me," she said.

Millicent left a tip for the waitress, picked up her check, her gloves and purse, strode to the door. Strange chills tingled up and down her spine. The hairs at the back of her neck seemed to crawl at the roots, trying to bristle.

THE fresh bite of the wind helped to steady her nerves. She was sorry that the walk was not longer. As she turned into the lighted lobby of the office building, she signed her name on the night register, and was swept up to the 17th floor. She walked down the flagged corridor with quick, nervous steps, the sound of her heels clacking in echoes from the sides of the corridor. She paused before Drimgold's office and opened her purse.

Consternation gripped her. It was not her purse at all.

Millicent turned the purse over in her hand and stared at it curiously. It was an exact duplicate of her purse—even to the initials, "M. G.," monogrammed on the leather.

With the quick mental processes of one who has worked for a living, and who, therefore, has grown accustomed to responsibilities, Millicent Graves, standing before Drimgold's door, made hasty mental inventory of the situation.

She had made up her face before leaving Drimgold's office. She knew, therefore, that she had taken her own purse when she left the office. The substitution must have taken place at the restaurant. The woman in the black ermine coat, with the high collar, in taking the table immediately behind Millicent, must have left her own purse near Millicent's.

Millicent tucked the purse under her arm, whirled and almost ran toward the elevators.

She pressed her gloved finger against the bell which summoned the elevator. It seemed ages before it swept into view. When it did she saw, to her surprise, that the man at the controls was not the janitor at all, but a well dressed individual to operate it?" "Oh, quite," he told her. "After all, it isn't too complicated."

As she entered the cage, the man moved a lever, the door clanged shut. He pressed over on the control throttle and the elevator shot downward.

"The trick," he said, smiling, "lies in knowing just when to stop." And then, before fear could grip her, he pushed the control lever back into neutral and the cage slid smoothly to a stop. He moved the lever which opened the door.

"Permit me," he said, and, taking her arm, escorted her to the street.

"You go this way?" he asked, nodding toward the right.

"Yes," she said, hardly knowing whether it was proper for her to continue the acquaintanceship so informally begun.

"Well," he said, to her relief, "I go the other way. You won't tell the janitor about the elevator, will you?"

He raised his hat, and, smiling, turned to sweep down on the wings of the cold night wind.

Millicent almost ran through the swinging door into the tea room. Her eyes encountered the gypsy girl.

"My purse," she said breathlessly. "What became of the woman in the black fur coat? The black ermine with the collar around the neck?"

The fortune teller stared at Millicent strangely. "She crossed to a table back of you," she said, "and only stayed for a minute or two. She wasn't served."

"Do you know who she was?"

"No."

MILLCENT GRAVES stared down at the black leather purse she held in her hand.

"If," she said, "she comes in, tell her to get in touch with Miss Graves, at Mr. Drimgold's office on the 17th floor of the Wolgamott Building?"

The fortune teller nodded. "I'll tell her," she said.

Millicent fled out of the door, was blown by the wind down the sidewalk.

She was within some 50 feet of the entrance to the Wolgamott Building when a figure, garbed in white, came rushing out of the lobby. She recognized the man as the assistant janitor.

As she looked at his white, frightened face, conscious of the cold perspiration on his forehead, of the manner in which the night wind whipped his hair about his forehead, he screamed the single word, "Murder!" Then he turned and ran down the sidewalk as fast as he could go, the wind at his back helping him in his burst of speed.

Millicent Graves, filled with some sudden premonition of impending disaster, in turn raced toward the lobby of the building. She found the elevator open and deserted. She had remembered enough of the manner in which it should be operated to work the lever which closed the door, and pushed the throttle over to the left.

It took a moment of fumbling with the controls to get the "Wait a minute," Drimgold pleaded. "Let's be reasonable. You can't leave me now."

of suave manners who swung open the door for her with something of a flourish, and, at the same moment, raised his hat.

"You'll pardon me," he said, "but I found the elevator on the 16th floor. I was in something of a hurry to go down. I rang several times for the janitor. He didn't show up, so I decided to take a hand at the controls myself. I figured the janitor could walk down 16 flights of stairs better than I could. Then I heard you ringing from the 17th floor and couldn't conscientiously abandon you to a long climb down the stairs. Would you care to share in my adventure?"

PERTURBED as she was, Millicent nevertheless recognized the man's inherent strength of character, was moved by his magnetic personality.

"Are you," she asked, "quite certain that you know how cage stopped at the 17th floor. Then, having opened the door, she ran down the corridor.

The door of Drimgold's private office was open.

Drimgold lay on the floor. A bullet hole in the center of his forehead welled a thick, red stream across the carpeted floor. A half-opened purse was clutched in the fingers of his left hand. The contents were scattered over the floor.

One swift look at the purse, and she recognized it. It was her own purse. The things which were strewn about the room were her own—lipstick, compact, handkerchief, visiting cards.

She felt panic tighten her throat. Moved by impulse, she ran to the window, flung it open and looked down the 17 floors.

The white-garbed assistant janitor was just rounding the corner, and, slightly behind him, a uniformed policeman.

DELIGHTFUL DODGERS STILL BETTER THAN CIRCUS

ORLANDO, Fla., March 30.—Dodgers sacrificing their entertainment value for baseball. That would be the national game on the banks of the Gowanus be without "Daddy" Vances, "Chick" Fawcett, and "Rab" Hermanns sliding into third base in a body, and Hermanns spearing fly balls with their noggin's.

Stengel's cap was a bird case during his playing days across the bridge. Casey is the noblest Dodger of them all—has been on and off since 1912. It was difficult to believe that he would do anything tending to make the citizens of Brooklyn take baseball seriously.

And good old Casey has no intention of letting his public down. "The main show may not be as sidesplitting as it has been in years gone by, but the showmen will be up to the old standard," explains Manager Stengel.

"Take 'Frency' Bordagaray, for example. Bordagaray can out-tell everybody in baseball except 'Daddy' Dean and myself.

"Bordagaray has outrun race horses at county fairs in California, and is further qualified to be a Dodger. For instance, the last place Chicago White Sox returned him last June because he was hitting .320, and because he had never hit under that figure anywhere.

ADDDED ATTRACTION

"We also have the smallest outfielder in captivity, and offer him to the public at one and the same price. He is Nick Tremark, 5 feet 5, and believe it or suspect me of fibbing, too small to be farmed out.

We sent Tremark to Buffalo last summer, and Ray Schaik, who isn't so large himself, shipped him back. Schaik couldn't believe that Nick was big enough to play ball even after he hit a home run.

"Then we sent Tremark to a New York Pennsylvania league outfit managed by Elmer Votter, who once played third base for Cleveland. Votter is a little, bald-headed bloke, but he wouldn't even give Tremark a uniform.

"When Tremark returned to Brooklyn, there was a new cop at the players' gate. The cop mistook Nick for one of the neighborhood children, and refused him admittance.

"Tremark rushed up to Business Manager Bob Quinn in high dudgeon, and hit the rafters when old Bob failed to recognize him out of uniform.

"I may fail to land or develop a pitcher to help Munoz, Emil Leonard, Ray Benge and Johnny Babinch, but I'll farm out Tremark if it takes all summer."

Yes, sir—The Dodgers are the little Dodgers.

STARS STUD ROSTER

The Dodgers have one of the great right-hand pitchers of the business in Van Lingle Mungie. They possess one of the game's brilliant young shortstops in Linus Frey. Lou Koenekne established a major league fielding record with only two errors, both debatable, in center field. Ralph Boyle led senior loop flycatchers in assists, although limited to 120 contests.

With all this going on there appeared to be real danger of the

Grid Game No Longer Thrills Jim Thorpe

BY GEORGE KIRKSEY

(United Press Staff Correspondent) HOLLYWOOD, March 30.—(UP)—A bunch of tough looking guys in prison garb were gathered around a table shooting dice. Down at the other end of the set the director was rehearsing a scene for the picture, "Safe in Jail," and the extras were killing time until they were called.

Convict No. 13,111, a giant of a man, looked on amusedly at the game, but didn't shake when his turn came. The game broke up for lunch, and convict No. 13,111, walked over and was introduced. His name was Jim Thorpe.

Thorpe, generally recognized as football's greatest player, has been earning his living for some time playing as an extra in motion pictures, averaging about $10 a day and working about three days a week. He is friendly with many of the directors, who aid him in getting work fairly regularly.

Thorpe, now 47, hasn't played football since 1929 when he was with the Chicago Cardinals' professional team. He has almost lost interest in the game, and doesn't attend the college games around Los Angeles often. He weighs 215 pounds, and looks in fairly good physical condition.

"I was out kicking the ball around the other day with some of the kids around my neighborhood," said Thorpe. "I can still kick it and pass but I guess I'm too old to play."

Thorpe has three young sons, Philip, 6, Billy, 6, and Dick, 2, but doesn't encourage them to play football.

"I guess it would be all right if they play football when they grow up," said Thorpe, "but I don't encourage them to play."

SACRAMENTO, March 30.—(UP)—February was a tough month for a rain in California, according to the state department of natural resources.

A total of 28 "cads" were submitted for bounty, or seven more than the average for February, the report stated.

HILLERS SCORE TRICE IN 8TH TO DEFEAT S. A.

Santa Ana has lost so consistently to San Diego in baseball that it will make news when—and if—a victory is scored over Mike Morrow's horrible Hillers.

Clyde Cook's Saints were headed in the right direction at Poly field yesterday until San Diego assembled five consecutive singles in the eighth inning for three runs that destroyed Santa Ana's 2-1 lead and produced another Hiller victory, 4 to 2.

However, the slim triumph was unlike the 18-3 and 24-1 massacres of the past two seasons, and indicated the marked improvement the Saints have made on the diamond. San Diego appeared no weaker. In fact, the Hillers looked even more dangerous than their Southern championship triumph of 1933 and '34.

Aided by flawless support, including two spectacular catches by Paul Bingle in center field, Pitcher Willie Jones set the visitors down in 1, 2, 3 order in four innings, and never was in trouble until the eighth. Bill Skelley, San Diego's No. 2 star, who pitched in the absence of the ailing Vance Randolph, enjoyed equal success. Skelley struck out 11 to Jones' 8.

Galindo, San Diego's clean-up man, began the fireworks by lifting a home run over the left field fence in the second.

Santa Ana tied the count in the third. Duane Teel reached first on a sharp grounder which was bobbled at short. He stole second, and hurried home on a single to right center by Ray Short.

Hal Jessee, third baseman, drove a long fly which fell into the hedges in left field for a double in the seventh, scored on another single by Short to put the Saints in front, 2-1.

Then came the dreary eighth. Jones fanned Pignatelli, but Barrero, Skelley and Williams all singled, and R. C. Moore, San Diego's all-Coast league football tackle, who catches for the Hillers, slammed a line drive over second to produce the tying and winning runs. Galindo, next up, scored Moore with a single to left.

The saints oppose Glendale's Dynamiters here next Friday. They have another home game with Alhambra the following week, then journey to Long Beach Poly April 26, and to Pasadena May 3.

By HENRY McLEMORE (United Press Staff Correspondent) DETROIT, March 30.—When Joe Louis climbs through the ropes with Primo Carnera in June the customers are going to see the natural "killer" the ring has had since Dempsey.

But he's a different kind of "killer." Dempsey, when the bell sent him out, was a wild man—a roaring, ripping, slashing fighter. Louis is cold, deliberate and calculating. He never hurries. He wastes nothing. He's a sharpshooter. In he comes with that slow, awkward shuffle, sniping, sniping, sniping. He seldom misses.

Along with a dozen other Eastern fight critics, we saw the 20-year-old Negro sensation for the first time last night when he slaughtered the veteran Natie Brown of Washington for ten rounds. And we left convinced that Carnera, when he faces Louis in June, will be up against as deadly a hitter as the heavyweight class has seen in years.

Final standings in Group No. 1 were: Santa Ana, 72 points; San Gabriel, 64; San Diego, 63½; Coronado, 52½.

Stanford university's track team offered indications today of the same strength which carried the Cardinals to championships last year in the National Collegiate and the I. C. 4-A meets.

Although beaten last night by University of Washington, 65-63, in their first dual meet of the season, Coach "Dink" Templeton represented performers who can score points against any kind of competition in the weight events, the hurdles, the quarter-mile, the javelin and high jump.

By concentrating on field events and the hurdles and letting other schools divide the points in running events, Templeton has compiled an enviable record of success in intercollegiate competition.

Templeton's team last night placed one-two in the javelin, shotput and pole vault, swept the discus with three-point winners, and took first in the high jump. In the hurdles, Sammy Klopstock, intercollegiate champion, galloped home first in both the high and the low events.

Washington won because of its superiority in running in a meet which was not decided until the last event—the relay.

Three new records for the Washington pavilion were set and a fourth was tied. The Washington relay team lowered the mark in that event to 3 minutes, 25.2 seconds. Smith of Stanford leaped 6'-0" for a new high jump mark.

Johnny Mottram of Stanford set a new javelin mark at 210, 21-2. Arne Anderson, Stanford, vaulted, leaped 12 feet to tie the existing record.

120-yd. hurdles—Howard (HB), 1:20.4 (HB), Nelson (T), Time, 1:23.2 sec.

DEAN FRANCIS SETS TUSTIN POLE MARK

Another Tustin school track record fell yesterday when Dean Francis pole vaulted 11 feet, 7 inches to better the mark of 11:06 held jointly by Kenneth Dilks and Orville Skidmore.

The new mark came during a Tustin-Huntington Beach prep dual meet at Huntington Beach, which Coach Harry Sheue's Oilers won, 64-49, Huntington Beach also took the "B" and "C" competition, 86½ to 16½ and 67-13.

Scandal Talk Follows Golden Miller Defeat

AINTREE, England, March 30.—A big horse repeated his victory of last year.

In connection with the rumors, the motion pictures of the Grand National showed a striking and not easily explainable incident.

Golden Miller, charging like thunder down the course, approached Valentine's brook, near where the Prince of Wales sat with his party. The favorite was running easily and approached the obstacle—not a particularly difficult thorn and horse fence, five feet high and three feet wide, without hesitation.

Easily recognizable by his white-stockings, Golden Miller soared out ahead of the other horses and cleared the barrier perfectly, the pictures showed. He landed easily and gracefully at a gallop and sped ahead a stride or so.

Then, the pictures show Jockey Wilson shooting from the saddle. The pictures did not show why Wilson was unseated.

The whispers of crookedness did not involve Wilson, who is a well known professional rider of excellent standing. The general trend of gossip in the bar rooms was that it was conceivable that betting interests "got at" Golden Miller.

Whisperings of scandal came in the wake of the mysterious falling of the famous horse, but these were met by sturdy denials from those most closely involved.

The failure of Golden Miller in the Grand National was a dramatic tragedy to many thousands of backers and sweepstake ticket holders but a life-saver to the bookmakers. It was said they would have been ruined had the

FIGHT CRITICS HOLLYWOOD IN CAL JOE LOUIS LAST TRAINING CAMP CONTEST

One of the largest crowds of Hollywood's training season is expected at Fullerton Municipal park tomorrow when the Shieks oppose the famous Japanese All-Star aggregation from Tokyo, at 2:15.

This game closes the exhibition schedule of Frank Shienkack's crew. Camp will not be broken until next Saturday morning, however, when the club goes to Los Angeles to open the official Pacific Coast league championship campaign against the Angels.

No games are carded for next week, as it will be devoted largely to skill practice and smoothing the rough edges. The Japanese are proving a great attraction and are undoubtedly one of the most colorful ball teams in the Orient.

Arriving in San Francisco about a month ago, the Nipponese have played to large crowds while opposing Pacific Coast and major league outfits. They have been able to hold their own.

Their appearance in Fullerton marks the opening of a heavy campaign in the Southland, after which they will tour the entire United States. A two-game series with Hollywood marks their only booking in the Fullerton-Anaheim-Santa Ana sector.

Theodoratos Wins Collegiate Title

SACRAMENTO, March 30.—(UP)—Washington State college boxers took back to the Palouse country today the team championship and four individual titles of the Pacific Coast intercollegiate boxing championships.

George (Lammie) Theodoratos, 256-pound Washington state athlete, won the heavyweight crown by defeating Jim Castle of California.

The only worry of his backers is whether the Negro can take a punch. To date, he hasn't had to show what he could do when nailed. This doesn't worry his handlers, however, for they tell you that in his first fight as an amateur several years ago, he was dropped seven times in the first two rounds, only to win the third going away.

Augusta Course Is Perfect Golf Test

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 30.—(UP)—The famous golfers of the world will play in the second annual Masters tournament April 4 to 6 over the beautiful National Golf club designed as the "ideal course."

Much of the beauty of this layout is due to the fact that many years ago the South's first nursery was established on this acreage. The property was originally settled by a Belgian baron named Prosper Jules Alphonse Berckmans and he established the nursery in 1858.

The late Dr. Alister Mackenzie, golf course architect, was the designer of the Augusta National with Robert Jones, famous golfer, contributing many of the ideas that went into the course.

"I do not believe the Augusta National will impress anyone as a long course," Dr. Mackenzie said in once describing the place.

"There are no irritating walks from greens to tees and moreover will be free from the annoyance of searching for lost balls that players will get the impression that it is shorter than it really is."

Par for the 18 holes is 72. Some of the greens have been lengthened this year and this is expected to make the scoring easier.

BOARD ADMITS NEGOTIATIONS ON FOR TRACK

Preliminary negotiations with several Los Angeles racing groups prospecting for a possible race track location in Orange county have been under way for some time, it was learned today, with the possibility that the Orange County Fair will be revived if favorable legislative results come from Sacramento.

Formation of an association to conduct race meets in this county under permit from the state racing commission probably would mean revival of the county fair, which was discontinued several years ago because of economic conditions.

"There are a number of things upon which the proposal depends," said Harry Lake, of Garden Grove, president of the old fair grounds, in admitting that several fair directors had been listening to propositions made from various Los Angeles racing sources, which also have met with the Buena Park Chamber of Commerce.

Await State Legislation

Pending legislation in Sacramento must be awaited, for one thing, said Lake, to see what the legal setup governing the racing situation may be. Present laws provide that 40 per cent of the bets placed at a race track, after deductions for the state fair and for expenses of the racing commission, would go toward premiums for the county fair.

"That would be a big impetus toward reviving the county fair," said Lake, pointing to the tremendous "take" at the Santa Anita track this winter. "Conditions for the farmer also seem to be improving, and that would be another factor to be considered," he added.

Proposals discussed with the fair directors, said Lake, offer an attractive situation for the fair. A 240-acre tract provided by the racing association, if formed, would be offered free for use of the county fair, besides the 40-per cent share of betting funds for fair premiums.

The racing association would be an entirely separate organization, not connected with the fair association, but there probably would be some type of working contract between them.

Western Site Favored

A site somewhere in the western edge of the county, so close to the Los Angeles population center, would be chosen if the project is carried out, said Lake. With Manchester avenue completed, such a site would be virtually as close to the Los Angeles city hall as Santa Anita, he added.

It is still undetermined whether the state racing commission, headed by Carlton Burke, well known sportsman, will grant a permit for a second race track in Los Angeles county. If a second track is permitted there, it would hurt the prospects for the Orange county track, but would not necessarily be a fatal barrier, Lake intimated. If there is no second track in Los Angeles, the Orange county site would have brilliant prospects of drawing attendance.

Another factor to be carefully considered is the source of financial backing for any proposed racing association, said Lake, who said that the state officials were extremely particular about that phase, and would scrutinize any group closely.

Lake emphasized that the proposal still was in a nebulous stage, with nothing definite determined, and numerous possible stumbling blocks ahead of it.

BOOK REVIEWS

BY MARY BURKE KING

The sailing ships built in the Maine coast were known in all the ports of the world, and it is the story of Major Fortune and his two children in the last days of the clippers that Rachel Field tells in her novel "Times Out of Mind."

It is also the love story of Kate Fernald, who comes to the Fortune's fine old house as a little girl when her mother becomes the Major's housekeeper. Kate is bound by love and hate to the Fortune and his proud and difficult ways through many years, and her loyalties are as strong as the roots of the Maine pines.

In "Son of Heaven," a Chinese writer accomplishes something that no Westerner could do. The author of this volume on an important period in the strange "Forbidden City" is Princess Der Ling, daughter of one of China's foremost statesmen, the late Lord Yu Keng, and for a time first lady-in-waiting to the great Empress Dowager, Tzu Hsi. Because of her father's position as ambassador to western countries, the princess has had an international education; further, her knowledge of Chinese history and court life is as intimate as it is extensive.

In "Son of Heaven" she relates for the first time the story of the colorful, dramatic and tragic career of that ill-fated Chinese Emperor, Kwang Hsu. Born under evil omens, early a helpless tool in the hands of the relentlessly ambitious Empress Dowager, and forced into early marriage with a woman he hated, the Emperor sought refuge in a great idyllic love and put an end to his romance with the exquisite Pearl Concubine—one of the most poignant of all love stories—and his attempts at reform were thwarted by the old Empress. Told by the only living author capable of unfolding from personal knowledge the story of this Emperor who was her friend, the span of a man's life passes against an exotic background, gorgeous beyond belief.

Lady Chatterley's Second Husband by Jehanne D'Orville, published by Robert M. McBride & Co.

The whole literary world knows how Lady Chatterley, an English aristocrat, renounced a title and assured wealth to enjoy "life and nothing more" with her husband's gamekeeper, Oliver Mellors. What was the outcome of this romance? That is the subject of this book, translated from the French. Oliver Mellors is "put in his place" and a bit of reality is superimposed on the idealistic sensuality of D. H. Lawrence's famous book. Lady Chatterley loses her money. She and Mellors found refuge in a forest on the continent where Mellors obtains a position as gamekeeper. Constance experiences a new emotional development as her child, Will, divides her interest with Mellors. She does their washing, cooking and cleaning. She, the well-bred, the cultured, lives in isolation with her handsome gamekeeper who eats with his hunting knife and has strong and inconvenient opinions at variance with Constance's viewpoint. "Life and nothing more" develops for Constance into a life closely resembling the unhappiness which the moralists predict will be the lot of people who defy convention as did Constance.

There is considerable astute observation on life and human conduct and while people who see D. H. Lawrence as a messiah will resent it there will be plenty more who will welcome the book as the one they would have liked to write in an effort to combat Lawrence's famous novel.

At one point the author says: "Should we not indeed be grateful to women getting on in years, to men feeling the strain of life, for the artifices they employ to keep themselves young and sprightly as long as possible? To hide one's age is another form of politeness. It is considerate towards your contemporaries, who are reassured by your wearing so well. It is considerate towards old people, to whom you thus give a new lease of life. It is considerate towards

'WHITE PARADE' OPENS SUNDAY AT WALKER'S

"The White Parade," a story of the life of a nurse in training, and "Lady By Choice" are teamed on the double bill at Walker's State theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Loretta Young has the leading role in the first picture, which besides its entertainment value, heart throbs and laughter, stands as a tribute to the nation's nurses. It is set in a modern training school for nurses and is dedicated to the memory of Florence Nightingale, founder of modern nursing. John Boles has a leading role and others in the cast are Dorothy Wilson, Muriel Kirkland, Frank Conroy and Frank Melton.

"Lady By Choice" presents Carole Lombard and May Robson in the story of a fan dancer who adopts a "mother" as a publicity stunt and how the attachment becomes lasting. Walter Connolly and Arthur Hohl are in the cast. The program also brings an Anson Weeks orchestra feature, "Rhythm on the Roof."

"Side Streets" with Aline Mahon and Paul Kelly is on the bill Wednesday and Thursday with "Limelight Blues," which features George Raft, Anna May Wong and Jean Parker. "Side Streets" concerns a woman's battle to hold the love of her errand husband. The other film concerns the activities and love interests of a gang of smugglers and river pirates in London. "Your Stars for 1935" completes the bill.

Bob Steele, favorite western action story actor, comes on Friday and Saturday in "Western Justice," which Manager Vic Walker says is a thrilling story with lots of action. The program also includes a Popeye cartoon, "Two Alarm Fire," a comedy, "Eric a Brack," a chapter of "Young Eagles" and a news reel.

GREAT NATURE DRAMA IS NOW AT WEST COAST

The most startling innovation in screen entertainment since motion pictures were discovered is offered in "Sequoia," nature drama featuring Jean Parker, which ends at the West Coast theater Monday night.

A human romance is blended into a story of American wild life containing such unheard of scenes as a mountain lion and a deer, nature's most deadly enemies, playing together like lambs; hundreds of deer on migrations into high Sierra regions never before photographed by a camera; mountain lions and wolves stalking animal prey, and intimate records of the daily life of such wild animals as coyotes, bears, raccoons, eagles, rattlesnakes, baby fawns and small lion cubs.

Photography that brings gasps to audiences was obtained by months of "stalking" behind trees and in brush shelters. Pack trains of mules carried equipment to the world's highest lakes at an elevation of 11,000 feet, where scenic beauties never seen except by forest ranger patrols, were captured by the camera. The picture is the perfect answer to the demand for wholesome and inspiring films.

Jean Parker is a girl of the forest who finds adventure and love while helping her naturalist father, Russell Hardie, is virile and convincing as the young forest ranger who finds love with the girl. Supporting roles are capably filled by Paul Hurst, Samuel Hinds, Edward Brophy and others.

The second feature on the bill is "Car 99," a fast moving, clean and adventuresome story of the work of the great criminal hunting agency, the Michigan state police.

The climax comes when Fred MacMurray, as a rookie, wins his spurs after a discouraging setback. Ann Sheridan, Sir Guy Standing, William Frawley and others have important roles.

A Pop Eye cartoon and World News events complete the program.

M'LAGLEN-LOWE FILM, ROMANCE OPEN TUESDAY

A rib-roking mystery thriller that dispenses laughs and suspense in equal measure is offered in "The Great Hotel Murder," which opens a two-day engagement at the West Coast theater next Tuesday with a second feature, "Enchanted April," starring Ann Harding.

Edmund Lowe and Victor McLaglen, that popular team of easy-going buffoons who have appeared jointly in eight pictures since they were spotlighted in "What Price Glory," are featured in the comedy-drama, "The Great Hotel Murder." They portray two sleuths, one a polished writer of murder stories who tries his amateur hand at solving real murders, and the other a heavy-footed and equally heavy-headed "dick" left out of Sherlock Holmes.

When a sinister murder occurs these friendly enemies follow a hundred clues and fight over every clue. The key to the mystery is held in the delicate hands of a young beauty. There is said to be a vanload of thrills and thrills, chuckles and guffaws in this story of rival detectives getting in each other's ways. In the supporting cast are such talents as Rosemary Ames, Mary Carlisle, Henry O'Neill, C. Henry Gordon, Henry Janney and others.

"Enchanted April" recounts the unusual vacation undertaken by four women who wish to get away from it all, forsake the security of the home of their own individuality or find pleasure in thinking about the past. The holiday leads them to Italy, where new love flowers and alters their intentions. The fine supporting cast includes Reginald Owen, Frank Morgan, Katharine Alexander, Jane Baxter and Ralph Forbes.

Short subjects on the program include a cartoon and World News events.

DOUBLE BILL AT BROADWAY ON THURSDAY

Lillian Harvey, lovely Continental actress and singer, is co-starred with the suave screen lover, Tullio Carminati in "Let's Live Tonight," which opens at the Broadway theater for the three days next Thursday with a second feature, "Princess O'Hara."

In "Let's Live Tonight" Miss Harvey will be seen as an American girl, summing on the Riviera, who meets and falls in love with Carminati, a Don Juan of the Mediterranean with a decided disrespect for real love. Disheartened at his cold cynicism, Miss Harvey reluctantly accepts the amorous attentions of another, only to discover he is Tullio's brother.

Carminati gained considerable fame as a result of his outstanding performance in "One Night of Love." Significantly, Victor Schertzinger, who directed this far-famed picture and composed the title song which was sung by Grace Moore, also directed "Let's Live Tonight" and wrote several melodies for the film. Featured players in the cast include Janet Beecher, Hugh Williams and Tala Birell. The film was lavishly produced against a background of the Riviera.

Damon Runyon's "Princess O'Hara" is said to be one of the most exciting film dramas of the year. A sparkling cast, headed by Jean Parker and Chester Morris, is featured in the racy, snappy picture. It tells the story of how a poor little Irish lass becomes involved in the theft of a famous race horse and how she almost comes to grief over it. The cast includes Leon Errol and Vince Barnett, ace comedians, Verna Hill, Henry Armetta, Ralph Remley and others.

Short subjects will include a Buddy cartoon, "Buddy in Africa," and Register World News events.

"Mr. Dynamite," starring Edmund Lowe in Dashiell Hammett's successor to "The Thin Man" and with Jean Dixon, Esther Ralston, Verna Hill, Joyce Compton and Mary Wallace in the cast, will open with "Transient Lady," a swift-moving melodrama featuring Gene Raymond and Frances Drake, opens on April 11.

"Traveling Saleslady," feminine successor to "Convention City," with Joan Blondell and William Gargan, will open on April 14 with another feature yet to be selected.

"$10 Raise," a tender, romantic story with Edward Everett Horton and Karen Morley featured, will be here April 18.

Another picture booked is "Bride of Frankenstein," a weird and exciting film with Boris Karloff, Colin Clive, Elsa Lanchester and Bela Lugosi featured. Another film coming soon is "Reckless," featuring William Powell and Myrna Loy.

SHAKESPEARE PLAY AT PADUA HILLS

CLAREMOUNT, March 29.—The Padua Players announce the production of "Twelfth Night," by William Shakespeare, for a run of two weeks, April 1 through April 12 at the Padua Hills theater.

The intimacy of Padua Hills theater provides the perfect setting for Shakespeare. The original production, approved and staged by the Bard of Avon called for no tremendous spectacle but rather for a more informal delivery of the fullness of speeches he had written.

Jerome Coray, director of the Padua group, was, for three years, a featured player with Jane Cowie in her production of "Twelfth Night."

Short subjects on the program include a cartoon and World News events.

STARS OF "SEQUOIA"

Jean Parker, heroine of the unusual drama of nature, "Sequoia," now showing as the featured attraction at the West Coast theater, is shown in the scene below with two of her animal friends, a mountain lion and a deer which became fast friends despite the fact that mountain lions and deer are nature's most deadly enemies. The second feature on the program is "Car 99," an adventuresome and romantic story of the Michigan state police which features Fred MacMurray and Ann Sheridan.

IN MIRTHFUL MUSIC FILM

The golden voice of Bing Crosby and the inimitable comedy of W. C. Fields are brought together in a picture of melody, mirth and romance, "Mississippi," which opens tomorrow at the Broadway theater. Joan Bennett has the leading feminine role in the film.

MYSTERY, COMEDY END AT BROADWAY

"Shadow of Doubt," moving picture version of the popular book by Arthur Sommers Roche with all of the excitement and romance of the novel transferred to the screen, plays at the Broadway theater for the last time tonight with a second feature, "It Happened in New York," a clever romantic comedy-drama.

"Shadow of Doubt" deals with a screen star and her lover, menaced by suspicion in a strange murder case, and a wealthy woman recluse who emerges from her hiding place of years to turn detective and solve a most baffling mystery.

Richardo Cortez, Virginia Bruce and Constance Collier head the cast. Isabel Jewell is a glamorous torch singer and sings the sing hit, "Beyond the Shadow of a Doubt" in a spectacular night club sequence.

In "It Happened in New York" Gertrude Michael is cast as a temperamental movie star who involves Lyle Talbot, playing a rough and ready taxi-driver, in an affair that almost breaks up his happiness with Heather Angel, his sweetheart in the story.

AT STATE

Loretta Young, below, has the leading role in "The White Parade," interesting movie based on the training of professional nurses, which shows at Walker's State theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

A unique method of smuggling dope was uncovered in China when a Chinaman, buying provisions for a wedding feast, was refused purchase of an especially large fish in the markets. He reported to police, who watched the dealer refuse to sell the fish to all except a man with a basket full. On investigation, the fish was found to contain many tins of opium.

WILL ROGERS "MISSISSIPPI" FILM TO OPEN SUNDAY ON THURSDAY AT BROADWAY

Picture-lovers who find Will Rogers' brand of humor irresistible will be pleased to learn that his latest picture, "Life Begins at 40," will be shown at the West Coast theater for a solid week starting next Thursday. It was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

Rogers portrays a double-fisted, tender-hearted country editor who proves that the years after forty are the best and goes in quest of the fun-tain of youth. He launches a series of situations that smash the funny bone to smithereens, it was stated.

"Life Begins at 40," relates the romance of a young school teacher and a youth "railroaded" to prison. The shrewd editor brings to light facts that clear the boy, and stirs up a hornet's nest of fun in the process.

Among the high spots in the picture are Will's efforts at hog-calling, and his pistol duel which he wins with wisecracking. America's ace humorist uncorks a brand new vintage of laughs, from reliable accounts.

The direction of this Sol M. Wurtzel production is by George Marshall. Lamar Trotti, who collaborated on the story of "Judge Priest," wrote the screen play.

The supporting cast includes Rochelle Hudson and Richard Cromwell in the romantic leads, George Barbier, Jane Darwell, Slim Summerville, Sterling Holloway, Thomas Beck, Roger Imhof, Charles Selton, John Bradford and Ruth Gillette.

Specially selected short subjects on the program include "This Band Age," with Ted Florigo and his band; "Topnotchers," with the Easy Aces; "Along Flirtation Walk," a color cartoon, and World News events.

A picture of melody, mirth and romance woven about a love story of the old South will show at the Broadway theater for four days starting tomorrow when "Mississippi" opens at the local theater with Bing Crosby, W. C. Fields and Joan Bennett in the starring roles, Manager Lester J. Fountain announced today.

In "Mississippi," Crosby sings for the first time an old favorite, a special arrangement of "Swanee." A chorus of forty Negro voices and elaborate settings make this production number one of the high-spots of the show.

The story of the picture, adapted from a play by Booth Tarkington, is that of a young Yankee who loses one Dixie sweetheart because he won't duel for her, and almost loses another because he's been doing too much dueling.

Crosby, in the leading role, spends the intervening time between these two romances on the river steamer of Fields, a noisy, blustering braggart who builds him up as the gun-fighting terror of the river, "The Singing Killer."

Songs, comedy and romance are so deftly mixed by Edward Sutherland's direction that "Mississippi" is unflagging entertainment from beginning to end.

Crosby's new hit songs, including the already popular "Soon" and "Down by the River," are the products of Rodgers and Hart. Queenie Smith, Broadway stage star, who makes her debut in "Mississippi," and the Five Cabin Kids, a juvenile Negro chorus, assist Crosby in musical numbers.

Selected short subjects on the program include "Hollywood Trouble," a Thailians comedy; "Sporting Sounds," a Grantland Rice Sportlight; "The Golden Touch," a Silly Symphony cartoon, and Register World News events.

BROADWAY BOOKS FOUR NEW FILMS

Four recently released motion pictures have been booked for early showings at the Broadway theater, it was announced today by manager Lester J. Fountain.

"Night Life at the Ritz," with William Gargan and Patricia Ellis in a high-spirited comedy, will open on April 11 with a second feature, "Florentine Dagger," a new mystery melodrama featuring Margaret Lindsay and Donald Woods.

"Gold Diggers of 1935," First National's latest mammoth musical spectacle featuring Dick Powell and Gloria Stuart, opens at the Broadway on April 14.

Claudette Colbert, winner of the award of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences for the best feminine performance in films of 1934, will be seen in her latest starring picture, "Private Worlds," in the near future.

The lavish dance ensembles, created by Dave Gould of "Carolina" and "Continental" fame, and featuring the pick of Hollywood's loveliest dancing girls, are all staged in the sensational manner for which the Folies Bergere is internationally renowned.

The musical effects cost $30,000 a minute to film and are said to be the most thrilling ever flashed upon a screen.

Final showing of Zane Grey's story of the adventures of the first wagon train trip to Oregon in 1844, portrayed in "Wagon Wheels," will be shown at Walker's State theater tonight.

Randolph Scott has the leading role as the scout and Indian fighter who saves the members of the caravan. Others in the cast include Gail Patrick, Monte Blue and Raymond Hatten.

The program also presents a color cartoon, "Peculiar Penguins;" A Mickey McGuire comedy, "Mickey's Rescue;" a news reel and a chapter of "Young Eagles."

New Musical Film Opens On April 7

Maurice Chevalier sings five gay songs in "Folies Bergere," new screen musical extravaganza coming to the Broadway theater on Sunday, April 7, it was announced today by Manager Lester J. Fountain.

The successful team of Jack Stern and Jack Meskill turned out "Rhythm of the Rain," "I Was Lucky," "Au Revoir L'Amour" and "Singing a Happy Song," while Harold Adamson and Burton Lane, who wrote "Stormy Weather" collaborated on "You Took the Words Right out of My Mouth." In the first two numbers Chevalier is accompanied by Ann Sothern, who shares feminine honors with the lovely Merle Oberon. Chevalier also sings one chorus of the memorable "Valentina."

The lavish dance ensembles, created by Dave Gould of "Carolina" and "Continental" fame, and featuring the pick of Hollywood's loveliest dancing girls, are all staged in the sensational manner for which the Folies Bergere is internationally renowned.

The musical effects cost $30,000 a minute to film and are said to be the most thrilling ever flashed upon a screen.

Tustin Young People Wedded at Pretty Church Rites

An unusually lovely decorative effect was achieved last night in the Tustin Presbyterian church, for the wedding ceremony at which Miss Marion Leiby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. O. A. Leiby of Third street, Tustin, became the bride of Charles Marshall, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Marshall of Holt avenue.

Stately calla lilies and long plumes of spirea were massed with ferns and palms at the altar, flanked by flickering white tapers in wrought-iron candelabra. Mrs. R. E. Carswell was at the organ and not only played the traditional Wagner and Mendelssohn Wedding marches, but accompanied Miss Marjorie Rawlings and Mrs. Henry Stevenson in the duet, "I Love You Truly."

Vows were repeated at 6:30 o'clock before the Rev. Calvin A. Duncan, pastor of the church. Miss Leiby, given in marriage by her father, was gowning in heavy white silk crepe and wore a gracefully arranged tulle veil. Her bridal bouquet was of white sweet peas.

Miss Eleanor Leiby was her sister's honor maid, and she and the bridesmaids, Miss Thelma Johnson and Miss Alita Fisher, wore gowns of tulle pink crepe and corsage clusters of pink sweet peas. Irvin Stone of Los Angeles was Mr. Marshall's best man while ushers were Charles Meyers of Pasadena, Jack Hubbard of this city, and Elmer Farnsworth of Tustin.

Grandmothers Attend
One of the interesting features of the wedding was the fact that the four grandmothers of the young couple were in attendance, and were accorded seats of honor. They were Mrs. Jessie Leiby, Mrs. M. E. Marshall, Mrs. Charles L. Hallett and Mrs. Eva C. Logan.

The wedding, attended by a large group of friends and relatives, was followed by a reception in the Leiby home for the bridal party and the immediate family. Mrs. Leiby was gowning in rose crepe with white accessories. Mrs. Marshall, mother of the bridegroom, wore blue crepe with dress accessories in the same color. Each wore a corsage of gardenias and white sweet peas.

Decorations of the home again stressed white and green harmony with lilies and fruit blossoms used effectively. A decorated wedding cake was cut by the bride to be served with ices, sweetmeats and coffee.

Departing for their honeymoon trip, the young couple revealed that they would be at home to friends after April 15 in a pretty new bungalow on Holt avenue. The new Mrs. Marshall traveled in a modish suit of rose colored sheer wool worn with dress accessories in brown.

Mr. Marshall followed graduation from Tustin High school with a course at Woodbury Business college, Los Angeles, where he was affiliated with Gamma Sigma Pi fraternity. He is connected with Tustin Hills Citrus association. His bride graduated from Tustin High school and from Santa Ana Junior college. She has been complimented at many parties and gift showers since her betrothal and wedding plans were first announced.

Amistad Class Party

Games in such variety that each of several tables had its own individual amusement, made this week's meeting of First M. E. Amistad class, a very merry affair. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Snow and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fox were hosts at the party, which was held in the Snow home on Santiago street.

Guests were invited for 7:00 o'clock to find all in readiness for serving a dessert course as the first hospitable feature. The customary business interval followed, with Mrs. Snow, class president, in charge, and the remainder of the evening given over to social features.

Present were Messrs. and Mesdames Gilbert Brown, Kenneth Brown, Gale Harmon, Earle Kent, Fred Lawrence, Delbert Lewis, Ralph Rowe, Charles Rockwell, Charles Vance, J. Floyd Vale, Mrs. J. B. Linen Shower Honors Fiancee of Tustin Resident

Miss Gladys Dunn of Hollywood, formerly of this city, whose marriage to Glenn Eustis of Tustin is to take place in June, was honored at a linen shower held recently in the Burbank home of her sister, Mrs. Paul Brown (Bernice Dunn).

The evening was spent in playing cards. Prizes went to Mrs. Maud Barnes of Los Angeles and Mrs. W. S. Rose of this city, who scored high and low. It was in the home of Mrs. Rose that announcement was made last December of the engagement of Miss Dunn, daughter of George Dunn of Hollywood, to Glenn Eustis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Eustis of Tustin.

Miss Dunn came into possession of her gifts during an entertaining period when alarm clocks rang at unexpected intervals.

Refreshments were served at small tables. In the dining room, a large wedding bell was suspended over a table to which white streamers led.

Mrs. Brown's guests included the bride-elect, Miss Gladys Dunn, and two other sisters, the Misses Ruth and Lucille Dunn of Hollywood; Mrs. Elmer Eustis, Miss Genevieve Eustis, Miss Hazel Elliott, Mrs. Verna Mead, Tustin; Mrs. W. S. Rose, Mrs. Charles Selmer, Santa Ana; Miss Margarette Sudlow, Mrs. James Scott, Burbank; Mrs. William Clasen, Glendale; Mrs. Effie Barnes, Mrs. Maud Barnes, Miss Mary McClure, Los Angeles; Mrs. Enid Miller, Hollywood.

Miss Gladys Dunn and her sisters attended Santa Ana schools.

BUTTONS AND RUFFLES FOR SMALL GIRLS

PATTERN 1942
By ANNE ADAMS

Lively little girls will claim this frock their own, and rightly. Front and back sections terminate in inverted pleats—to give plenty of room and a nice swing to the frock. Wide bands over the shoulders are held down by gay, colorful buttons, and from the bands flare the ruffles which serve as sleeves. It's as adorable in cross-bar gingham as can be; it's precious in pastel striped lawn. It couldn't be lovelier than in dotted dimity. Be sure to choose fairly large buttons that carry the color in the fabric. Bloomers are included in the pattern.

Pattern 1942 is available in sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 4 takes 2-1/8 yards 36 inch fabric. Illustrated step-by-step sewing instructions included.

EAT AND GROW SLIM

ANN MEREDITH'S MIXING BOWL

Dinner

Cream of asparagus soup, 1 cup
4 heaping tbsps. beef stew with vegetables
4 tbsps. canned spinach cooked with 1 head shredded lettuce
1 tsp. butter to dress diet serving
Canned grapefruit salad with diet French dressing
Black coffee or clear tea without sugar.

Calory total, 550.

One can of cream of asparagus soup diluted with water, not milk, and served with a small spoonful of whipped cream in each cup, is a soup everyone likes.

Have you ever freshened canned vegetables by cooking them with shredded lettuce? It's a swell idea, and can be applied to spinach, canned peas and string beans with excellent results. Ten minutes cooking does the trick and stretches the vegetable, also.

To complete the family meal, add potatoes, rolls and a dessert.

Does anyone know how to make "Hunter's Stew"? I am very anxious to get this recipe and will appreciate receiving it.

Slim skirts, the high note of this spring's fashions, certainly won't look slim over bulging hips and ungainly waist lines. Do something about those figure deficiencies of yours and do it quickly, for Easter comes pretty soon. The easiest way is to use a good diet.

I have that diet and it will work if you have the will power to stay with it. Send me a stamped, self-addressed envelope and a copy will come by return mail.

If you'd like a grand big Calory List so you'll know what you are doing in a food way, just ask for it and exchange a copy of one of your pet recipes for the list. Both can go in the same envelope.

TODAY'S RECIPES

Italian Rice

2 cups broth
1 1/2 cups dry rice
1 cup chopped mushrooms
2 tbsps. olive oil
1 envelope Parmesan cheese, grated

1 minced onion
1 tsp. butter

Heat broth, adding a cup of water. Fry minced onion in iron skillet with olive oil, adding salt to taste. Stew in the rice and stir until fried to a nice brown. Now add enough broth to cover the rice, cover and cook slowly, adding more bouillon as needed. About 15 minutes add mushrooms and cheese, and when rice is ready for table, stir in the butter.

With a crisp salad this becomes a main dish. The recipe serves six.

Irish Stew

2 pounds mutton or beef, cubed
4 large onions
8 medium potatoes
Bunch parsley
1/2 tsp. thyme
Salt and pepper

Put meat in kettle with 1 cup water. Cover and cook until water evaporates, add another cup of water and cook dry, same way. Then add the onions, quartered, the minced parsley and thyme. Add water to cover, and simmer until everything is tender. Add potatoes, cut in quarters, cover and cook 30 minutes. No thickening will be required.

This stew serves six at a calory cost of 400 per serving.

Au revoir until Monday.

ANN MEREDITH.

REV. SPEAR TO GIVE LECTURES ON PROPHECY

Bible prophecy knows what statesmen and citizens are trying to guess about the present chaotic situation in Europe—whether it will be war or peace, universal ruin and the end of civilization—or what?

So declares Evangelist R. R. Spear, who opens a series of meetings at Temple theater Sunday evening at 7:30, speaking that evening on the subject, "War in Europe?"

J. J. Anderson, Chicago radio artist, will direct the Orange County Choral society in a select program of sacred music at the service.

The series of meetings will continue until Friday, with presentation of various subjects. "A World Dictator" will be the subject Monday evening.

Miss Budlong To Give Lectures On 'New Techniques'

"What Modern Civilization Contributes to Religion" is the title of the series of three addresses which begins tomorrow at the Unitarian church, with an address on "New Techniques," by the Rev. Julia N. Budlong.

Two others, on "New Problems" and "New Hopes," will follow on succeeding Sunday evenings, at 7:30 o'clock. These addresses are the regular Sunday evening services of the Free Church Fellowship, and are given by its director, the Rev. Miss Budlong.

In discussing the present series, the Rev. Miss Budlong stated: "Modern civilization gives religion the new techniques of mass production and mob psychology; the new problems called forth by a unified world, and the hope for a paradise on earth, which is suggested in outline by H. G. Wells in 'The Shape of Things to Come,' which I shall review for the last discourse of the series.

"Tomorrow night, the opportunities, the problems, the advantages and dangers of this mass production world and its tools for forming and controlling human reactions will be considered.

"Do they make a better or a worse world? Should we rejoice in our mechanical civilization, or condemn it and try to escape from it? Is it sensible or pious to sigh for the good old times or to sneer at old-fashioned ways? Are the changes which this generation has witnessed for better or for worse? Is the machine religion's friend or foe? Is it humanity's friend or foe?"

Colored Singers To Give Program At M. E. Church

The colored octet of Sam Houston college, Austin, Texas, will give a concert featuring spirituals at the First M. E. church Sunday evening, 7 o'clock. The program will start at 7 o'clock.

Accompanying the singers will be Dr. Stanley E. Grannum, president of the college, who will be the speaker of the evening. The group is making its annual tour of the United States.

Sermons from M. E. Church Broadcast

Radio broadcasts of the Sunday morning sermons by Dr. Glenn Randall Phillips, pastor of the First Methodist church of Hollywood, have been arranged by the Men's club of his church, following comment by the membership upon the excellence of these Sunday morning messages, according to announcement made today. The broadcast will come over KPAC from 11 a. m. to 12:15 p. m.

Dr. Phillips is president of the Los Angeles Ministerial association, and has served pastorates in Santa Maria, North Hollywood, and Phoenix, Ariz.

Lessons From the Life of Peter

Text: 1 Peter 5:6-11; 1 Peter 3:14-18

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for March 31.

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D., Editor of Advance

All the 12 lessons of this quarter have centered around the life and teaching of Peter. Peter offers a rich and fruitful study of the nature of the Christian life with all its hopes and aspirations, with its weaknesses and failures, and its emergence to triumph through the saving power of God. Our lessons begin with Peter's conversion and call. We must put together various passages of Scripture if we would get the full story, and even then we have only a glimpse of it.

From one account we might imagine that Jesus came as a complete stranger where Peter was by the Sea of Galilee mending his nets, and that in the very moment of Jesus' call he left his nets and followed Jesus. The story as it is given in the first chapter of John, however, adds a great deal to that and explains it.

There we have the record of Andrew, Simon Peter's brother, meeting Jesus and becoming so impressed with his truth and teaching that he goes and finds Peter and brings him to Jesus. It is probable that Peter may have had a number of such contacts with Jesus before the final call in response to which he left his nets.

Discernment of the greatness of the Master, to whom Peter gave himself, was early acknowledged in his great confession. Jesus was indeed for Peter the Christ, or the Messiah, the Son of God.

Such a recognition and such a relationship might well have enlarged Peter's vision and so strengthened his will that he service; message, "God's New Deal"; chorus, "He'll Never Forget to Help Me"; special closing service, "In the Light of the Cross"; organ numbers, "Serenade," "Evening Prayer" (Reinecke), "Finale" (Frank).

would have been secure against any temptation. Yet we find him so lacking in the simplicities of love in human relationships that Jesus must give him a lesson in the simplicity of love, and we also find him denying his Master in the most flagrant way.

It was well for Peter that there was a love of God that followed him in spite of his weakness, and that restored him to a place in faith and discipleship. With this restoration came a new Peter doing his part in the founding of the Christian church as he preached at Pentecost when many were saved.

Henceforth in the lessons of the quarter, we are face to face with Peter's teaching and example as a faithful servant of Jesus Christ. We listen to him as he laid emphasis upon good citizenship and the disciplines of the Christian life.

We are with him as he healed the lame man at the gate of the temple, and we discern him as he unmasked falsehood and hypocrisy in the early church, dealing with those who profess to give to God what they actually withhold, and with those who would buy the gift of grace.

We see Peter saved from narrow religious and racial prejudice, preaching to the Gentiles. We follow him in his miraculous deliverance from prison, and in the final lesson we listen to the flowering of his teaching concerning practical living as he describes, partly in his own terms and partly in language derived from the Jewish scriptures, the nature and reality of the Christian life.

It has been a quarter's lessons concerning vital truths centered in a remarkable personality—a man of impetuous zeal, crucial weakness, and of God-given strength of achievement.

Kittle, jeweler. The bakery concern expects to open up its Laguna store May 1.

Kenny Talks At Townsend Dinner

TUSTIN, March 30.—H. P. Kenny, of Santa Ana, was the speaker at the regular meeting of the Tustin Townsend club held this week at the social hall of the Advent Christian church. Ira Wertz, president, presided.

Using as his authority, the report of the United States government, Kenny declared that "there is a difference in the business being done in this country and that which could be done if we were running at capacity which would equal in six months, a sum equivalent to our national debt. Whether the Townsend plan is passed by the present congress or is not passed, in either case, it means that the Townsend organizations must keep on fighting."

Plans were made for the next meeting of the Tustin Townsend club, which will be a 6:30 o'clock potluck supper program at the social hall of the Advent Christian church, with Mrs. Thomas and Mrs. Andrews in charge of supper arrangements. All club members are urged to be present and the public is cordially invited, according to Mrs. B. F. Beswick, publicity chairman.

The Story of the Bible Told in Pictures

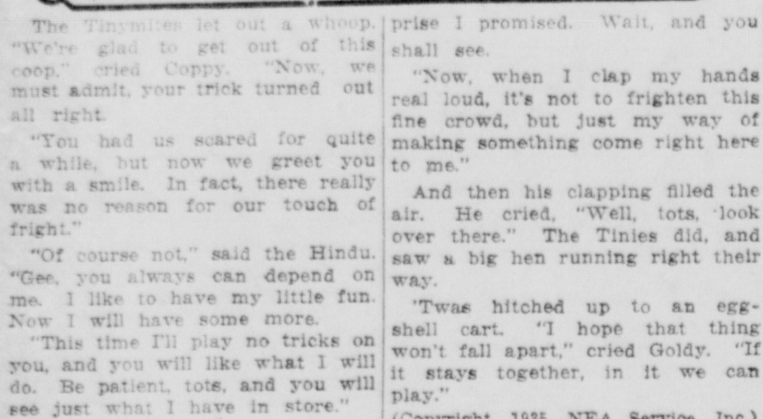

Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego in the Fiery Furnace

Nebuchadnezzar made a golden image in the plain of Dura and commanded that everyone should bow down and worship it, declaring that anyone who failed to do so should be thrown into a fiery furnace. Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-nego, upon their refusal to worship the idol, were cast into the midst of the fiery furnace. "And these three men, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, fell down bound into the midst of the burning fiery furnace. Then Nebuchadnezzar the king was astonished. Lo, I see four men loose, walking in the midst of the fire, and they have no hurt; and the form of the fourth is like the Son of God. Then Nebuchadnezzar came near to the mouth of the burning fiery furnace, and spake, and said, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abed-nego, ye servants of the most high God, come forth. And the princes, governors, and captains, and the king's counsellors, being gathered together, saw these men, upon whose bodies the fire had no power."—Daniel 3: 23-27. This illustration is from Merian's story of the Bible told in pictures, engraved in 1625.

THE TINYMITES
STORY BY MAL COCHRAN - ILLUSTRATIONS BY KING

"War," snapper, the giant. "I suggest that, first of all, it would be best for all of us to have a bite. The treat will be on me."

"Just wait right here till your friend brings some sandwiches and other things. I'll come back with a platter and 'twill be a sight to see!"

He then raced to his little house and soon, as quiet as a mouse, sneaked back to where the Tinies were, and shouted, "Help yourselves!"

"I have, here, sandwiches galore, and if you need them, I'll get more. I've everything to make them with piled high upon my shelves."

OLD ALLIES ARE GETTING TOGETHER

The "new deal" for Belgium has just been announced by her premier. It reduces the value of money in terms of gold by 25 per cent immediately and permits a further devaluation of another 5 per cent. At the same time, he announced a program of public works, promised to stimulate industrial production in all manners possible, guaranteed bank deposits, and announced a desire to resume diplomatic and commercial relations with Russia.

With England, France and now Belgium all catering to Soviet Russia, the old 1914 lineup for war is becoming more than a probability. Of course the excuse, and it is not without merit, is that Belgium has found it increasingly more difficult to secure and hold her share of foreign trade, and that as a result unemployment has been increasing of late in the country.

Was the foreign minister of Russia smiling as he drank a toast to the King of England, happy in the knowledge that old allies were seeking friendship, and were using all manners of what the Chinese call "face saving" devices, while again acknowledging that Russia was a great world power?

Belgium's money will be tied to that of England, and will fluctuate in value with that of England. Certainly Hitler has noticed now that Belgium will do as England does.

During the last few days, the government of Poland has been deposed for lack of confidence and a pro-Allies cabinet is in power. Yesterday's news from Poland dwelt on anti-German riots. Things are not going so well with Germany now.

COMPARATIVE LIVING IN NEW YORK AND KANSAS

The ingenious Talk of the Town paragrapher in the "New Yorker" has been studying the comparative worth of living in Kansas and New York from the statistics in the "World Almanac." And here we have his conclusions.

He says a bachelor's chances of being overtaken by paternity is in the ratio of 6.3 for Kansas and 22.2 in New York. That is, the New Yorker has a three-and-a-half times' better chance to become a father than a Kansan.

A 42-year-old bachelor has a life expectancy in Kansas of 30.73 as against 26.25 years in New York. His chance for dying of cirrhosis of the liver is twice as great in New York as in Kansas. The Kansan is less likely to die in a home for the feeble-minded than the New Yorker.

On the other hand, the Kansan's danger of getting lynched and murdered is greater than in New York; and if he steals something or assaults somebody he is more likely to get caught than the New Yorker.

So there you are. You can get away with more in New York if you live, but you will die sooner in New York than in Kansas, provided you are not lynched or murdered. This about balances the chances of life for the New Yorker and the Kansan.

Well, that is one way of looking at it. It only goes to show that there are some compensations no matter where you live.

MEXICO PROSPERING

Mexico has been relatively prosperous during the last two or three years and is now contemplating the expansion of her Pacific coast trade. Immediate plans call for the construction of small shallow draft vessels to ply in and out of Mexico's small as well as large ports of the Pacific.

The Mexican government has undertaken the development of natural resources, and the promotion of tourist travel. Its largest program, however, embodies a sympathetic and constructive attitude towards the millions of people who make up the greatest part of her population.

The wants of these people steadily increase as their standard of living increases. In this country, millions of people are steadily curtailing their wants as their income decreases and industrial activity, which we generally regard as synonymous with prosperity, makes but little headway.

While it is well recognized that the "spender" is the life of trade war, as yet, have not been able to induce millions to spend more generously than they now are doing.

The fear of penniless old age is before them, and until we have freed them from that fear, they will continue to try to save.

A FINE TRIBUTE

That was a fine tribute to the late Justice Holmes given by one of our paragraph writers a few weeks ago. "Oliver Wendell Holmes," so it ran, "was the layman's favorite judge. He sat upon the supreme court bench for 30 years without giving up his membership in the human race."

The legal mind is inclined to tradition, to make technical judicial distinctions. The ancient forms still in vogue in all court papers and legal documents meant nothing to Justice Holmes.

He spoke the language of the intelligent man of the street because his mind was attuned to the mind of that man. No doubt, for Blackstone and for Coke, and for ancient Roman law, he had a high intellectual respect. These were great for their day. He sought to be great for his age and for his contemporaries.

It will be long before the words, "Justice Holmes dissenting," will cease to be quoted in the history of American jurisprudence; and it is due to the fact that Justice Holmes never gave up his membership in the human race.

MODERN CLIPPERS

The Pan-American clipper, not a sailing ship but a flying boat, is expected to land at San Pedro today. Thursday this giant of the air, capable of carrying 10,000 pounds, came gracefully to rest in the harbor of San Diego, having flown a distance of three thousand miles from Miami in the two previous days.

By June it will have been displaced by three giant Martin clippers, with a wing spread of 130 feet, capable of carrying 48 passengers, and a total load of 51,000 pounds.

These ships are to establish regular passage service between the United States and China, where the Pan-American Airways are already maintaining a definite air route between Chinese ports. A freighter loaded with 6000 tons of freight is now proceeding across the Pacific and will establish air bases at the Midway Islands, Wake Islands, Island of Guam, Hawaii and Manila.

No dream of 100 years ago could possibly have been as wild as the actual facts of today. Jules Verne's phantasy of ships sailing under the sea have long ago come true, and now a phantasy greater even than that has become a reality.

It would seem that whatever man can conceive or imagine that he can also learn to do. The distance between landing fields will be about 1500 miles and will be traversed in about ten hours, or an average speed of more than 150 miles an hour.

MAYBE THERE'S A REASON

News dispatches yesterday carried the report that Charles M. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, who has been characterized as "the great optimist of American business," has returned from the French Riviera "in a complete reversal of form."

Airing a gloomy outlook he told reporters: "We don't seem to be progressing. We seem to have gone back since I have been away." He has been in southern France for three weeks, hobnobbing with his friend Sir Basil Zaharoff, munitions king of Europe.

Maybe his gloomy outlook was caused by the revelations made at the U. S. Senate Munitions inquiry and the wave of popular resentment that has been aroused against the maneuvers of those who pile up hundreds of millions in profits from the suffering and destruction of war. His firm made great profits during the World war.

The "Employment Index"

New York Times

To those who are mourning over the absence of sustained and substantial economic recovery, some interest ought to be imparted by last week's Department of Labor report on February employment. The Bureau's monthly "employment index" is sometimes waved aside as providing no fair criterion of basic industrial conditions, because the greater increase in number of active laborers (so the argument usually runs) has occurred in public works. But the Bureau's index number applies only to manufacturing industries; it therefore excludes governmental "relief projects." Increase in working forces of those enterprises would have to be added to whatever of gain should be reported by the "factory-employment figures."

What this latest monthly return shows, then, is that employment in manufacturing establishments was the largest of any February since 1930. Not only so, but, except for last April and May, it was the largest of any month since Autumn of 1930. Compared with February in 1933, the increase works out nearly 35 per cent. The National Industrial Conference Board yesterday gave out the estimate that, as compared with March, 1933, the number of unemployed has been reduced 3,158,000, or 23.4 per cent. Payrolls last month in establishments reporting to the Labor Bureau exceeded 1934 by 14 per cent and were greater by 71.5 per cent than in 1933; they were much the largest monthly figure since June of 1931.

These comparisons give only one indication of the change that has been coming over the industrial scene. The change has been gradual, but a mere glance at the figures above cited serves to indicate how considerable a distance has been traversed toward a normal status. There is a good deal more of ground to cover before the manufacturing employment even of such years as 1923, 1924 and 1925 would be restored. Taking the average employment of those three years as 100, the Bureau's percentage index number for last month was only 81.2. But in the Spring of 1933 and the Summer of 1932 it fell below 59.

Yale's Ideals In Sports Would Bar Professionalism

San Bernardino Sun

Many a son of Old Eli must have found it inspiring to read President Angell's latest attack on the mercenary phases of college sports. Old grads like to go back to the campus and see a winning team, but most of them would rather go back and see a losing team go down fighting for the sake of college and sport than to see a winning team that's made up of what the head of Yale calls "hired men."

In the last few months, said Dr. Angell, "we have been treated to an unblinking defense of proselytizing and of hiring athletes for college sports which surpasses anything we have previously known." Repeating much of what he had set down in an article published at the close of the 1934 football season, he went on:

"We are at the parting of the ways. Those who wish to see college sports conducted by hired men and put on exactly the same level with professional baseball, football, hockey and prizefighting will turn in one direction. Those who still believe that college sports can be saved to its finer and higher purposes... will turn in the opposite direction."

That the paid coaches and the paid players have taken out of college sports qualities which the campus can not afford to lose and injected faults which the campus can not afford to condone, thoughtful observers have agreed for several years. On more than one campus the exploitation of college sports has become a veritable racket. With those who favor commercialized sports, Dr. Angell has no quarrel. But as for Yale he would have her seek athletic relations only with institutions of the same ideals.

More Truth Than Poetry

By James J. Montague

LINES BY A LUNKHEAD

The scientist grows quite excited
When he finds there are hovering near Vast millions of mites.
Which sing through the nights.
But whose music we never can hear.
But what use are such midgets to people
If never we know they are there?
Let 'em sing all they will
Or let 'em keep still.
That is strictly their private affair.

The scientist writhes with emotion
When he routs out a new unknown star;
But more pleasure to me
The aroma would be
Of a fat brown half-dollar cigar.
I should not even care for a comet,
No matter how shiny and bright,
And I'd not give a rap
If some well meaning chap
Should hand me a meteorite.

I don't know how deep is the ocean,
Nor how far away is the sun;
I do not know where
Is the end of the air.
Or how Turkish cooking is done,
I don't know the distance to Egypt,
Or how to make cranberry pie;
I freely admit
That I'm lacking in wit,
Yet somehow I seem to get by.

Recovery efforts teach us that the best captain can't make the boat go if the crew just stands and looks on.
Yet the naked savage is as rich as the millionaire. He has everything he wants.

A nation is born bottom when it has no great leaders except those who are going the wrong way.
Better not condemn the other man's ideas unless you have done something to prove yourself smarter than he is.

THE MEASURE OF A MAN IS THE SIZE OF THE OFFENSE THAT GIVES HIM A LIFE-LONG GRUDGE.

A free land is one where a man makes a failure of his own life but knows just how to run the country.
Every cause needs two leaders: a builder to do the work and a bad-name caller to draw the crowd.

There's one consolation. When the Senate gets rowdy and common, you can buy a seat lots cheaper.

AMERICANISM: Demagogues threatening to ruin all of us; able men keeping silent lest they offend a cash customer.

So long as the voice of the people cries "Gimme!" the most popular leader will be the best gimmler.

You can tell the healthy ones. They regard "nerves" as a mixture of self-pity and imagination.
If you are tempted to do violence, watch your step. All cruelty in man's history was prompted by ignorance.

THE MEER INHERIT THE EARTH. YOU
SEE, THEY MARRY MEN WHO HAVE DOMIN-ATING PERSONALITIES AND PATIENTLY OUTLIVE THEM.

It isn't enough to think you are right. All tragic blunders are made by men who think they are being smart.
Let us be thankful for Wall Street. We need something to blame when we act dumb and lose our shirts.

Thoughts On Modern Life

BY GLENN FRANK

THE CANDOR OF HENRY WALLACE

Not for many moons has American public life been served by so candid a servant as Henry Wallace.

His latest discussion of the genesis and outlook of New Deal legislation—particularly the NIRA for industry and labor and the AAA for agriculture—deserves a wide reading.

During the last seventy-five years, as he points out, governmental powers of great importance have been, from time to time, loaned to various groups. Since 1932, according to Mr. Wallace, the NIRA and the AAA, it is interesting to see just how it came about.

Business got the jump on other economic groups in securing grants of essentially governmental power, power that in significant instances amounted to monopoly. As Labor and Agriculture have watched Business get these governmental powers over the years, they have, in self-defense, pressed for like powers. But down to 1932, according to Mr. Wallace, neither Labor nor Agriculture was as successful in gaining the ear of the government as Business had been.

At this point the NIRA and the AAA entered the picture to equi-librate the governmental powers loaned to Business, to Industry and to Agriculture. This legislation sought to give certain things to these three groups in common and on a more equal basis, viz:

(1) To each was given bargaining power.

(2) To each was given power to maintain a balance, in matters of production and prices, with the others.

In return for the right to use these new powers loaned by the government, each of these economic groups was expected to respect its obligations to the people as a whole.

"Once farmers were able to meet the other major groups on equal terms, I hoped," says the candid Mr. Wallace, "that all three groups would unite in an effort to so change the rules of the game that profit would be the reward for abundant balanced production rather than the reward for clever bargaining and the economics of scarcity."

He then proceeds to give illuminating illustrations of the way in which the "rights" granted by this New Deal legislation have been welcomed and the "duties" implied in it ignored.

The question we shall have to settle sooner or later is whether
Mr. Wallace goes far enough in his analysis. Is group selfishness the sole reason why we are every day intensifying our economics of scarcity, or is the NIRA and AAA legislation itself a kind of policy that contributes directly to an economics of scarcity?

FANCIES OF CHILDHOOD

Clara is thirteen. She gets good reports in school and the family look with favor on her for the most part. "Not that she is a wonder or anything like that," says mother in haste lest you think she is bragging, "but just a thoroughly nice child."

Lately Clara has been doing something that worries her mother greatly. So far she has kept it secret. Clara does not know that she knows nor has she told a soul about it, except the trusted teacher.
"She dresses in all kinds of clothes and acts in front of the mirror. She poses and gestures and declaims all by herself, in her room, with the door closed. Every minute she gets she is at it. I am afraid that she will go out of her mind. Or maybe be an actress. What shall I do?"

Let the child alone and offer her materials for her costume trunk. Let her know that you have no objection to her dressing up and playing she is Joan of Arc or Mary Pickford. And don't worry about her going on the stage. Worse fates might befall her than that. However, she is not likely to be an artist. This dressing up and passing into the personality of a glamorous being who is all imagination and romance is one of the passing fancies of childhood. Let it run its natural course and no harm will come of it.

Now and then a boy shows strange preferences and does strange things accordingly. Maybe he goes about wearing an air of mystery and makes a show of being silent and watchful and clever. He is a Sherlock Holmes or some other brilliant detective hot on a trail. Or he is a bandit, a gallant knight, a suffering martyr, Buffalo Bill or the dramatic
Mr. Bangs who lives down street.
Take it all as a matter of course and bear with it as patiently as possible. It will pass over. Some phases of fancy will have to be modified for the safety of the dreamer and the comfort of the family. The budding Marconi who wires the house so completely that he can make safe passage out of the question has to be restricted somewhat. If, in his enthusiasm for Sherlocking, he lies in wait behind hedges and trails the neighbors to their doorsteps he must be cautioned. The neighbors might object.

These vagaries and dreams, moods and enthusiasms are characteristic of the adolescent. They are not to be suppressed completely. They are to be granted safe conduct through the diffi-
